The City of Wonders. A Village Built to Order. 6 Black Bulls, 100 Beauties. Stars In Hollywood Sky.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.

THERE ARE too many things to be seen in this city of wonders. Consider a few incidents of the last twenty-four hours.

Dinner on the edge of the Pacific ocean in the house of the beautiful and talened Norma Shearer. In private life she is Mrs. Irving Thalberg, and they have tennis nets strung all around a swimming pool to keep the two-year-old boy from walking in.

Thalberg, everybody agrees, is the ablest super-director of them all. His task is to extract from plays and actors all their possibilities, a sort of intellectual mining engineer.

A VISIT to the Olympic village where sixteen hundred athletes of more than thirty nations live in a little city that Los Angeles built especially for them, and that H. O. Davis has equipped and runs for Los Angeles with great ability and perfect harmony.

The village of 500 small houses, each nationality having its separate group, kitchen and dining room, stands on a high hill that overlooks the Pacific on one side, the city of Los Angeles on the other.

A VISIT in the afternoon to Mary Pickford's studio.

On the way you meet her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, and Harold Lloyd, arm in arm. They say:

"Come and look at Eddie Cantor, he is still working."

You turn toward Eddie Cantor, and Samuel Goldwyn, who appears, hurrying, says:

"I will show you Eddie Cantor, he is making a picture for me."

EDDIE CANTOR is dressed in a bull fighter's costume, a big black belt around his waist. Temporarily he is in a prison cell with heavy iron bars, probably made of paper painted black. "I have been in better jails than this," says he, introducing you to Sidney Franklin, the American bullfighter, who left this country at the age of eighteen to kill bulls in Spain, Mexico, everywhere. Says Cantor:

"Show him the bulls, we got real ones."

Franklin, the professional bull fighter, and Douglas Fairbanks who practiced bullfighting to make a picture, lead the way to a corral where six black bulls shake their horns, paw the ground, acting as though they had lived all their lives in Hollywood registering malevolence.

Two long-horned brown American steers keep the bulls company and, according to Bull Fighter Franklin, they prevent the bulls from fighting among themselves. Steers don't want to fight, can't see any sense in it, and separate the bulls when they start.

LEARN FROM Mr. Franklin that a red rag means nothing to a bull. He cannot distinguish colors and will dash at any moving object, big or little. To be safe in his company the bullfighter stands still, while he moves to the left or right the banner that he holds in his hand. The bull sees the banner moving, follows it, and cannot turn around in time.

The matador's sword is plunged into the bull's spine just above his shoulders, not into the bull's heart. Douglas Fairbanks pointed out the spot with his finger on one black bull that appeared annoyed. The sword severs the spinal cord, paralyzing the bull, causing hemorrhage and death within twenty minutes. The impetus of the rushing bull, not the strength of the matador, buries the sword four feet in the animal's body. No bull is used twice, the second time he would know too much. He has a good memory.

IN THE PICTURE Eddie Cantor, supposed never to have seen a bull in his life, is forced to become a bullfighter, after Sidney Franklin has shown him how the work is done. You see a few "shots" of Mr. Cantor's latest contribution of the Americas.

In addition to six Mexican black bulls and two brown steers there are one hundred beautiful American girls, with eyes almost as big as Cantor's.

The ladies when you first meet them are "co-eds" in a great college. All are in bed, and all sleep in black lace nightgowns which would be no great protection in case of frost. They arise one after the other and all walk up a staircase to a swimming pool, thus showing the profile. After the bath they slide down a strange chute that might be used for firemen.

IN THE NEXT scene, a school mistress, with eye glasses, rebukes two young ladies that have overslept and compels each to say twenty times, "I am a naughty girl." The third that has slept too long is hard to awaken, but, once awake, it instantly begins saying: "I am a naughty girl." This is not true, for it is Eddie Cantor, who has smuggled himself into the young ladies' dormitory.

The school mistress says "Satan inspired you to drink and then come to this sacred place."

Cantor, answers ingeniously, "No maam, you are mistaken. Satan may have made me drink, but coming here was my own idea."

IRVING THALBERG who, in co-operation with Louis B. Mayer, has kept Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer highly successful in spite of the depression, says:

"Today it is necessary in a picture to give the public

RACKET WAR BLAMED IN BOMBING

Volpe Funeral Auto Wrecked; Bazzano Rites Luxurious

Soon after an automobile used to carry flowers in the funeral of the racketeering Volpe brothers was bombed in Swissvale today, John Bazzano, their slain aide, was taken from his exclusive Mt. Lebanon home for military burial in New Kensington.

A flare in the racket feud was seen in the destruction of the automobile of Charles Farrina, in front of his home, 2044 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale, early today.

A bomb tossed into a front seat let go with a blast that wrecked the car and shook the entire district. The top was found in a tree near where the car had been parked. Windows in the Farrina home and neighboring dwellings were shattered.

VOLPE FUNERAL CAR

The Farrina car carried part of the 18 automobile loads of flowers to the burial place of the Volpes, Arthur, James and John, after they had been shot to death in the coffee house owned by Bazzano in Wylie avenue, two weeks ago yesterday.

In strange contrast with Bazzano's wretched death in Brooklyn, Monday, where his body, with 22 icepick wounds, was found tied in a gunny sack, was the scene in his elaborate home, 1287 Washington road, this morning.

The slain man, presumed to have been the real racket boss of the Hill district, and who shunned the spotlight as he amassed wealth, lay in a $5,000 engraved steel casket, surrounded by flowers, rosary beads and a prayer book in his hand. Costly floral tributes filled a room opposite.

BLESSED BY PRIEST

For a brief moment the Rev. Father E. Dominicis, of Holy Souls' Catholic Church, Carnegie, accompanied by two altar boys in church garb, entered the room, and the priest blessed the body.

As the casket was removed to the hearse, a blanket of roses lay on the top, surmounted by an American flag. Bazzano, said to

Parked Auto Hit; Girl, Man Injured

Richard Hallahan, 7250 Verona boulevard, and his companion, Thelma Grosz, 19, 206 Clavert street, were injured early today when their parked automobile was sideswiped by another machine driven by Herbert Wentz, 429 Kirk avenue, according to a police report. Hallahan was changing an automobile tire, he told police. Wentz was lodged in South Side Police Station on a reckless driving charge. The accident occurred in East Carson street.

FLIER SCORES IN DEFENSE

By LARRY SMITS
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 13.—With the prosecution reserving decision on its course in the fight for the conviction of Capt. William N. Lancaster on the charge of the murder of Haden Clarke, and yet still believing that experts might swing the balance of the scales back in the state's direction, the eleventh day of the British flier's trial got under way today.

The state was frankly upset as the testimony of Albert H. Hamilton, Auburn, (N. Y.), ballistics expert who declared from the witness stand:

"There is not a possibility of doubt. This man killed himself. It was suicide. There is not a scintilla of evidence to support the theory of murder."

Hamilton, holding the skull of Haden Clarke in his hands, testified the powder burns on the outside of the skull, and on the inside, as well as the fractures radiating from the wound on the inside of the skull, proved that Clarke himself fired the shot which ended his life.

Hoover Stand Hints Early Dry Law Vote

Action at December Congress Session Forecast

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A proposal to modify the Eighteenth Amendment today seemed likely of adoption at the December session of Congress, as both Republican and Democratic leaders declared President Hoover had approved their specific modification plans in his acceptance speech.

Representative James M. Beck, Republican wet leader of the House, indorsed the President's modification views, declaring they differed only in detail from the famous Beck-Linthicum resolution which the House almost adopted this summer. Simultaneously, Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, a converted modificationist, said the President had accepted his resolution, which the Senate defeated during the summer.

NEW AMENDMENT

There was a general sentiment on Capitol Hill that the President's proposal for prohibition reform would lead to submission of a new amendment next fall. The Water Rate Cut Here Ordered

Commissioners George W. Woodruff and Samuel Walker, who comprise the commission's special investigating committee, proposed the reduction in rates after an informal conference with officials of the water company here last Tuesday, he said. The committee's decision was influenced by a study of the earnings reports and operating expenses of the company, Tevell explained.

Six New York Gunmen Flee After Robbing Gasoline Station

Six gunmen and a blonde companion cruising in two automobiles bearing New York license plates, believed, police say, to be wanted in New York for murder, eluded Squirrel Hill radio car police early today following a holdup of an American Oil Company gasoline station at Third and Liberty avenues, according to a police report.

Three of the men held up Martin Newstein, of 1136 North Euclid avenue, the attendant, and h's companion, LeRoy Pennington, of 4 First avenue, and then locked them in a cellarway of the station after taking $35 from Newstein.

Police were not notified until a half hour after the robbery. When the broadcast was sent out, Squirrel Hill police notified the detective bureau that a police radio car had stopped two New York cars containing six men, a blonde and a chow dog, but had released them after questioning.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER DROP

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The stock market recovered in the last hour today, after a further sharp dip in the earlier trading.

Losses of $1 to $5 in many of the leaders, on top of even sharper declines yesterday, were largely regained, and a number of issues closed with advances ranging from a few cents to $1 over yesterday's final prices.

Trading was moderately active, or somewhat under 2,000,000 shares for the two-hour session.

For details of trading on all markets see finance pages.

Forbes First to Tell Actress They're Divorced

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—It was no news to Ruth Chatterton that a divorce decree was granted her actor-husband, Ralph Forbes, in Minden, Nev., today. The actress said:

"Mr. Forbes called me up by long-distance telephone and told me all about it."

She asserted the ground for the action was "incompatability," and said she and her husband would continue to be "good friends" despite the dissolution of their marriage.

When Miss Chatterton arrived from Europe yesterday she declined to confirm or deny reports that she and George Brent, her leading man in several pictures, planned to wed, on the ground that it would not be "good taste" while she and Forbes still were married.

Asked today whether she would comment now in view of the decree, she said only:

"I still have no statement to make."

NAZI LEADER DEMANDS CONTROL

Insists on Post of Chancellor in New Cabinet

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler, fiery chieftain of the National Socialists, upset the plans of President von Hindenburg and the present government today by declining an offer of a vice chancellorship in the new cabinet which is to be formed soon.

Hitler announced his decision to Chancellor Franz von Papen at a conference which began at 11:45 a. m. He informed the chancellor that his policy would be one of determined opposition to the present government. He also declined an offer of the ministry of the interior for one of his party lieutenants.

PARLEY POSTPONED

As a result of Hitler's decision his conference with President Paul von Hindenburg was postponed.

Hitler declined the Prussian premiership in combination with the post of vice chancellor, demanding instead that he be made chancellor with absolute control of the cabinet.

The announcement that his audience with President von Hindenburg would be deferred until this afternoon was accompanied by a semi-official statement to the effect that this meeting "will now be a mere formality since Herr Hitler already has announced his opposition to the cabinet."

Political observers did not think that the President would be able to change Hitler's mind.

GRAVE SITUATION

The semi-official statement regarding the audience with Von Hindenburg was withdrawn shortly after it was issued and another substituted, announcing that Hitler and Chancellor von Papen, fully realizing the gravity of the situation, were continuing their negotiations.

At 1:30 the conference ended and the two parted. The government press department said Hitler had insisted on his demands to the very end.

President Von Hindenburg ordered the chancellor to report to him this afternoon and some time after 4 o'clock he was to receive Hitler. The final decision rests with the President.

Meanwhile, efforts continued to persuade Hitler to approve Gregor Strasser, one of his most valued assistants, for the post of vice chancellor and premier of Prussia.

Wife Balks Piccard Flight in Storm

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—In deference to the wishes of his wife, Prof. August Piccard, Swiss scientist, today awaited more favorable weather before taking off on his balloon flight into the stratosphere.

The flight was to have begun at dawn today, but was called off when meteorologists forecast storm clouds approaching.

Girl Dies as Two Plunge From High Trapeze

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Orville Larose, trapeze artist, brushed away tears today and vowed he was through with the show business forever.

The first accident his act had suffered in 10 years took the life of Irene Berger, 21, one of his partners, last night, and injured his young wife so badly she will probably die.

Larose had finished his own part and stood looking up 125 feet to where Miss Berger and his wife, Roxy, were performing above the Steel Pier, amusement place. Miss Berger hung from a trapeze with her feet, Mrs. Larose dangled from another by her teeth.

When Miss Berger reached to catch Roxy her foot slipped and both shot to the floor. The former died in a hospital, the latter suffered a fractured back and punctured lung.

Party Too Noisy, Baby and Kitten Sleep in Woods

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—There was a party at the Surovich home and Marie, 2, was put to bed.

The tot was missing when guests went home. A general alarm sent citizens to dragging creeks and seeking kidnapers.

Toward morning, in the thick underbrush on a hillside Marie was found—asleep, a kitten in her arms. She lisped:

"There was so much noise, Kitty and I couldn't sleep."

Breakfast Bucket Ends Girls' Record Flight

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

CURTISS FIELD, L. I., Aug. 13.—Grounded—because of breakfast!

This was the plight of Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden today, when they ended their endurance flight after 17 hours and 33 minutes in the air.

The bucket containing their meager morning refreshment smashed against the tip of the left wing of their cabin plane, tearing the fairing, and it was decided over the coffee cups to come down to earth and have it fixed. The damage was slight, but the women preferred stopping now, rather than within a short distance of their goal of more than 122 hours.

They will take off again this afternoon, to start all over, they explained, as the plane came to a perfect landing at 9:50 a. m. near Valley Stream.

Both young women, who had hoped to beat the record set by Bobby Trout and Edna May Cooper in Los Angeles last year, were disappointed.

HOOVER TO CALL BUSINESS LEADERS INTO CONFERENCE

DRIVE TO SPEED INDUSTRY MAPPED

President Seeks Aid Of Corporations And Leaders

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—President Hoover is applying to a new drive for better business one of his oldest and favorite ideas—that of asking help directly from the men he thinks can give it.

He will present to business and industrial leaders in a conference shortly his plans for "united and concerted action on a broad front throughout the country." The date of the meeting he expects to announce Monday.

At that gathering, Mr. Hoover will expound his nine-point economic program to men of importance from each of the 12 federal reserve districts.

His work in that direction, he told newspapermen, has progressed far enough for the business men to be called into consultation. With them he will discuss means of speeding self-liquidating construction by loans from the Reconstruction Corporation, stimulation of a move to clear slum districts, distribution of live stock and feeder loans to farmers, spreading existing employment through shorter working hours, establishment of the Home Loan Banking system, stimulating railway construction and repair work, helping in the disposition of agricultural commodities, and other things.

And before long, too, he expects to select a new director for another of his relief machines—the organization of unemployment. Walter S. Gifford's resignation was accepted yesterday by the President. The director said he felt he could not continue the work for another winter.

Acted as Counsel of Utility While Head Of State Board

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—Former Mayor Harry A. Mackey today admitted that he was paid $1,000 a month by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to act as counsel while he was a member of the Pennsylvania Workmen's Compensation Board.

The ex-mayor's statement came in defiance of charges made by Lawrence C. Hickman, an attorney of this city, that "an unnamed former state and city official had been on the traction company's payroll." Mackey stated:

"I suspect that I am the man to whom Hickman refers. He does not have to go to a lot of trouble to prove this fact to the Attorney General or anyone else.

"There is no secret about the payments. I did not think there was a person in Philadelphia who did not know about them. I mentioned them publicly several times, often in campaign speeches.

"It is true I received this salary while I served as chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board. The P. R. T. had no cases before the board at that time and it was never the custom for board members to give up their law practice during their term of office."

Hickman is counsel for A. A. Chapman, formerly confidential secretary to the late Thomas E. Mitten. Several weeks ago he charged that W. D. B. Ainey, then chairman of the Public Service Commission, had accepted $150,000 from Mitten. He has urged a general investigation of P. R. T. affairs.

WALKER GAINS IN FIGHT TO HOLD JOB

Court Order Blocks Early Decision by Roosevelt

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ALBANY, Aug. 13.—Mayor James J. Walker's never-say-die battle to prevent Samuel Seabury, or anybody else, from removing him as chief magistrate of the greatest city in the country, seemed decidedly nearer success today than when the public hearing began last Thursday before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

For one thing, the prospect of Gov. Roosevelt acting quickly on the removal charges is now remote, as a result of the court order issued by Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hinman yesterday, which blocks a decision until August 19, when the Governor's authority to remove the Mayor will be argued in court.

APPEAL ASSURED

For another, indications are that if the court on August 19 upholds the Governor's contention that he has jurisdiction in the Walker case, other court battles will follow. Although Mayor Walker had nothing to do in obtaining the order issued by Justice Hinman, it is virtually a certainty that if Walker comes out second best in his present legal battle in Albany, his lawyers will carry the fight against removal up to the Court of Appeals.

And, if they meet with a reverse there, perhaps counsel for Walker will carry the fight on to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Politically, Gov. Roosevelt is the beneficiary of the present status of the battle hinging around Walker's removal, in the opinion of observers. For the Governor may not have to act on the delicate matter ruling on the removal of the Mayor until after the presidential election. Consequently, he may avoid the danger of incurring the enmity of Mayor Walker's friends in New York State and throughout the country. At the same time the Governor cannot be accused of dodging the issue of clashing with Tammany Hall by failing to act in the case of one of its idols.

ROOSEVELT READY

The Governor was ready to meet the issue but events beyond his control may prevent him from doing so—at least before November after which time the political effect of a decision on his part would be materially lessened.

There was no session of the hearing today, the Governor having adjourned the proceedings until Monday afternoon when Mayor Walker will resume the stand for further questioning concerning the charges Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the Hofstadter legislative inquiry, has filed against the mayor.

HOOVER SPEEDS REPEAL VOTE

new amendment, while repealing the eighteenth, probably will retain in the federal government all control over interstate traffic in alcoholic liquors. It can scarcely go much further.

The President's demand for a federal ban on saloons undoubtedly will develop a controversy. There will be stiff opposition to placing in the Constitution any phrase outlawing the saloon. A large group of constitutionalists have opposed consistently the inclusion in that document of any legislative bans. They will argue that regulation of the method of selling liquor should be left to the states, if the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed.

There was a widespread disposition among Republican leaders to take the prohibition question out of the coming presidential campaign. This was evidenced not only by President Hoover, but by Beck, leader of the Republican wet bloc.

COUNTY RELIEF BILL DRAFTED

A bill will be put in the hopper at Harrisburg tonight or Monday to legalize a bond issue by Allegheny County poor directors.

Drafting of the bill was decided upon after a conference yesterday between the poor directors, the County Commissioners and representatives of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Association.

County Solicitor J. P. Fife advised the County Commissioners that in his opinion the matter of a bond issue for relief by the poor directors was entirely in their hands, and that the commissioners have no jurisdiction other than to lend their moral support to the proposed issue.

Pending passage of the legislation the poor directors will use $200,000 from their funds for maintenance of Mayview to carry on their outdoor maintenance. They have sufficient institutional maintenance funds available to carry them over until taxes come in next year.

Dog 'Autoist' Bites Boy Climbing on Car

Women Voters Blamed for 'Slump'

ERIE, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Blaming women voters not only for saddling this nation with prohibition and an economic crisis, but also for those "seedy-looking neglected men who sleep in the parks," George Deliman, of Girard, today started a campaign to disenfranchise them. He said:

"Equal rights must be abolished to bring back prosperity. We have a land of plenty, and if American men could depend on themselves, we would not need to look to foreign countries for business."

PINCHOT WARNS OF NEW CUTS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today announced that appropriations to schools, homes, hospitals and mothers' assistance funds will be reduced if the Legislature does not pass the Steedle $7,500,000 economy bill.

The measure is in conference committee to patch up differences between the House and Senate. The House passed the bill with economies of $15,000,000, which the Senate halved.

In a letter to Representative Joseph G. Steedle, Allegheny, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Pinchot reminded Steedle he has signed measures restoring appropriations to these institutions. These restorations will be annuled, he said, if the Steedle bill is not passed, and approved by him.

WOMEN TO TREK WITH JOBLESS

The Homewood-Brushton and Garfield districts will be well represented by women on the trip to St. Louis with Father James R. Cox to attend the national convention of the Jobless-Liberty party. At least 50 women from the districts will make the trip.

Mrs. Charles Lewis, of Jordan way, captain of the Garfield auxiliary unit, met with several of the unit members yesterday and discussed the trip.

Father Cox today received a telegram from W. A. Tomasini, a San Francisco engineer, saying he would be unable to accept the invitation to be the priest's running mate on the Jobless-Liberty ticket. He declared he would attend the convention and aid the campaign.

Tomasini, prominent in California politics, is credited with swinging California in favor of Wilson during the Wilson-Hughes presidential campaign.

FIRM HERE GETS BIG RUSS ORDER

An order for machinery that will keep its Glenshaw plant busy for the rest of the present year has been received by the Thomas Spacing Company from the Soviet government, it was revealed today.

The contract, which is reported to be for approximately $1,000,000, was made with the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the Soviet purchasing agency in this country. It calls for the installation in a large bridge fabricating plant now under construction in Russia of machinery for punching steel beams and plates.

The Thomas company, of which George P. Thomas is president, will send its engineers to Russia to install the equipment.

Star and Mate Still Good Friends, But 'Don't Get Along'

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(INS.)—Another romance is flickering out for Mary Hay, the dainty musical comedy star and former wife of Richard Barthelmess admitted today.

She is contemplating seeking a Paris divorce this fall from David Bath, manager of radio and theatrical stars, whom she married secretly in Greenwich, Conn., the night of April 10, 1927.

While Bath sat beside her smiling ruefully, the dancer said:

"When we are apart we love each other dearly, but when we are together we don't get along at all.

"We are still the best of friends, but we have been separated since June and it looks as though the situation will remain that way. I have talked with Mr. Arthur Garfield Hays, my lawyer, about a divorce, and he didn't think I should do anything just now. But I'm going to Paris this fall anyway—"

Her husband corroborated:

"Yes, we're still awfully good friends. We have dinner together four or five times a week. But we don't seem to make a go of marriage."

GOV. ROOSEVELT TO SEE GARNER

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 13.—In the quiet seclusion of his country home on the banks of the Hudson River, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today turned his attention to the presidential campaign, temporarily side-tracking consideration of the removal charges against Mayor James J. Walker.

Gov. Roosevelt is looking forward with much pleasure to his conference tomorrow with his running mate, John N. Garner, of Texas. It will be the first meeting of Democracy's standard bearers and many details of the campaign are scheduled for discussion.

Roosevelt and Garner are expected to devote a considerable part of their conference to President Hoover's acceptance speech. It has been intimated that Garner, in his campaign tour, will have "plenty" to say about the President's stand on prohibition and foreign debts.

CITY FAVORED FOR HOME BANK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Believing that Pittsburgh has a "splendid chance" to be chosen as one of the branch bank centers, William E. Best, Allegheny County's member of the board of directors of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, today expressed confidence that Western Pennsylvania would not be forgotten in the final set-up. Best said:

"There are a number of important major problems of law interpretation and policy which our board will have to settle before districts and city branch centers can be determined, but we are putting in long, busy days trying to expedite matters as much as possible."

He declared that Pittsburgh had gone directly to the White House for consideration in regard to receiving a branch bank, and that he, of course, would help with his own efforts.

Eddie Cantor, with the only American bullfighter, six black bulls, two long-horn steers, and one hundred beautiful girls in black lace nightgowns should fill the bill.

MARY PICKFORD—Fairbanks, who is working on a new picture and shows no interest in the six black bulls, or the one hundred young ladies, has with her tea twenty-four kinds of cakes for her niece, and a clever little girl of three, who shakes hands with everybody twice. Cordiality is the thing in California.

Under circumstances that would cause an eastern policeman to ask, "Where do you think you are going?" the California policeman asks, kindly, "Where do you wish to go?" and almost bows.

MISS PICKFORD'S picture, "Secrets," just starting, will be finished in October. Douglas Fairbanks, having just finished a South Sea Island picture, starts in three weeks for China. Combining pleasure with business, he will shoot some of the long-haired Chinese tigers that live in caves.

THE NEXT event on the program will be dinner in half an hour with Miss Helene Madison, the marvelous girl from Seattle, greatest woman swimmer in the world. What she says will be interesting.

Less than two hours ago Helene Madison, with three other American girls, won the women's relay swimming race. Miss Madison was sent into the race last of the four Americans because all knew that she could make up any lead if necessary. But the American girls won easily.

Balm Verdict Appeal Denied Aimee's Mate

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—David L. Hutton, singing husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, was denied a new trial of the suit in which Myrtle St. Pierre, Pasadena nurse, was awarded a $5,000 breach of promise judgment against him. Hutton's attorneys were granted a stay of execution for 30 days.

Miss St. Pierre sued Hutton for $200,000, charging him with refusing to marry her. Hutton's appeal for a new hearing was based on alleged irregularities during the trial.

Meanwhile Mrs. Hutton arrived in Los Angeles from Vallejo to attend the midsummer conference of Angelus Temple officers.

YELLOW ROSES MEMENTO OF REUNION

Daughter of John D. Awaits Return of Youngest Girl

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Yellow roses, the favorite flower of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, were the fragrant reminder today of a visit from her divorced husband, Harold F. McCormick.

The head of the International Harvester Company, who hurried back from the Pacific Coast when Mrs. McCormick's illness became serious, sat at the bedside of his former wife for more than an hour last night. He carried an armfull of the roses as he entered the room.

The couple's children, Fowler McCormick and Mrs. Muriel Hubbard, who have been daily visitors, were not present when their father called. Another daughter, Mrs. Max Oser, is on her way from Switzerland to be with her mother. Estrangements resulting from the marital alliances of all three children have been healed by their mother's illness.

The condition of Mrs. McCormick, who is the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was reported by her physician as unchanged.

Eleven years have passed since Mr. and Mrs. McCormick were divorced. In the interim McCormick married and divorced Ganna Walska, Polish opera aspirant.

YOUTH SLAIN AT ALTAR

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A mysterious young man, participant in an extortion plot, was shot to death last night beside the altar in a Catholic chapel where once he prayed. He was identified as William Tischbein, 23.

Officers said Tischbein was waiting in the chapel for $200 demanded by the extortionists for the return of $2,000 worth of vestments stolen from the Mt. Alverno Technical Institute of Catholic Boys.

Officials of the institute had been ordered by the extortionists to send a brother to the chapel with the money at 10 p. m. But instead of finding a brother waiting for him, Tischbein, a former student at the institute, was met by Deputy Sheriff Enil Gau.

Gau tried to capture the young man, but had to shoot when the latter attacked him. The vestments later were recovered in the attic of the chapel.

BOND SOUGHT IN POISON CASE

Writs of habeas corpus to free Mrs. Anna Allas and Mrs. Mary Chalfa, jailed with Mrs. Gizella Young on murder charges in the alleged Munhall poison plot, were granted late yesterday by Judge George V. Moore.

Hearing on the writ was set for Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. Attorney Joseph Schutzman declared the charges against Mrs. Allas and Mrs. Chalfa were "preposterous." The three women were committed after the county chemist reported finding poison in the exhumed bodies of James Mantyo and Richard Duyva.

Brown Derby Now All That Hoover Lacks

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

All the presidential candidates have now been officially notified except Mr. Borah.

Roosevelt took his on the fly. Garner threw his arms around the letter carrier. Hoover took it standing up and Curtis absorbed his in capsule form.

We heard Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech on the cold coffee hour. Herbie should have been nominated in a brown derby for he indorsed everything promulgated by Al Smith in 1928.

All Al could do was to yell, "He's stealing my thunder."

The only question about the theft is whether it's grand or petty larceny.

Look like the G. O. P. is trying to hang up a new record by electing a Republican on a Democratic platform.

Both Roosevelt and Hoover have lost the support of the drys who themselves depend for support on the people who refuse to support them any longer.

Girl Fights to Keep Jurges Notes Secret

VIOLET VALLIE . . . SHE TURNED DOWN A $25,000-OFFER!

'DOOMED' DOG NOW HEROINE

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Ming Toy, Baltimore's famous chow dog, who several months ago faced an ignominous death for biting, today was hailed as a heroine. The chow was instrumental in saving the lives of 17 other dogs, trapped in a burning barn.

Brought back to Baltimore County last week on a new court order rescinding the death penalty and the subsequent penalty of life exile in Delaware, Ming Toy was placed in a suburban kennel.

Fire broke out in a barn where 20 dogs were housed. Ming Toy, in her kennel nearby, gnawed her harness, broke away and either jumped over the 6-foot corral or forced her way through the wire gate.

An attendant at the house, some distance away, was awakened by Ming Toy's frantic barking and was able to free 17 of the dogs in the barn. Three perished.

Asks Court to Balk Publishing of Cub's Love Letters

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Violet Valli, piquant showgirl who shot Shortstop Bill Jurges, of the Chicago Cubs, today made a strenuous attempt to prevent publication of 25 love letters which the ball player sent her.

She appeared before Judge John Sbarbaro seeking a warrant charging larceny by bailee against Lucius Burnett, a former friend who possesses the missives. Miss Valli declared:

"Burnett intends to put Bill's letters out in booklet form under some title like 'Love Letters of a Shortstop' and to sell them at 25 cents each to the baseball public."

The girl said Burnett had offered her $25,000, $5,000 of it immediately, if she would co-operate with him. She said she refused on account of "Bill's feelings—and mine, too." She declared she had informed Jurges of the plan and he advised her to "go the limit" in stopping publication.

Judge Sbarbaro pointed out that it was not a criminal case and that Miss Valli would have to seek an injunction.

Polar Explorer Meets Waters, Chief of Capital Army

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The resolutions committee of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion, despite a personal appearance by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in behalf of the National Economy League, voted last night to report favorably to the state convention a resolution opposing curtailment of benefits now received by veterans.

The Economy League, of which Admiral Byrd is chairman, has gone on record as opposed to veterans' benefits for disabilities not directly connected with service.

The committee also voted to report favorably a resolution demanding repeal of national prohibition.

It decided also to advocate immediate payment of the balance due veterans on adjusted service certificates, to condemn treatment of the bonus army at Washington and to demand immediate modification of the Volstead act as well as repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Admiral Byrd and Walter W. Waters, leader of the Bonus Army, met yesterday for the first time. Byrd listened to all Waters had to say.

The lanky, blond Waters, in puttees and khaki breeches, told the admiral:

"What we want is a square deal for everyone in this country. I am opposed to the special interests that are getting everything. It's time the ordinary citizens were given a break."

MYSTERY GIRL TO FACE QUIZ

Homicide detectives today planned to go to Mercy Hospital to question a woman who beyond giving her name as Betty Gannes, or Gannis, surrounds herself with mystery. She gave a number of aliases.

The woman was brought to the hospital Thursday from Hays' Drug Store, at 1001 Wylie avenue, where she collapsed after asking for a drink of water.

Hospital authorities said she was suffering from an overdose of a sleeping medicine.

When she recovered consciousness today efforts were made to learn her identity.

PREACHER WINS JAIL TRANSFER

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Rev. S. A. Berrie, charged with the murder of his first wife, today had been transferred to Muskogee County Jail after County Attorney Phil K. Oldham had announced he would not oppose a mandamus action brought by the minister's attorneys to force the move.

He had been held in city jail, police contending their investigation was unfinished. The mandamus petition charged police were "conspiring" to ruin Mr. Berrie's reputation.

There was no indication today when the defense would carry out its intention of seeking bail for the 52-year-old hymn writer.

His young wife, whom he married soon after the first Mrs. Barrie, died allegedly of a poison, has been exonerated by authorities.

Ribbon Awarded Over Display of Man Who 'Fired' Him

What were only discards to national gladiolus growers proved prize winners to an unemployed florist, Louis R. Biehl, of 1223 Iten street, North Side, as he captured six prizes out of nine entries in the commercial florist competition of the American Gladiolus Society show which closes tonight in the William Penn Hotel.

As the prominent growers unpacked their exhibition flowers in the second basement of the hotel on Thursday, Biehl sorted through the gladiolus they deemed not good enough to place in their exhibits. The discards netted him $32 in prize money.

The awards were made for best arrangement of flowers.

Leading florists of the city were in the competition, including one for whom Biehl had worked for 12 years. He was laid off two months ago.

OWNER QUIZZED AFTER BLAST

Jacob Spirer, of 5532 Bayard street, owner of a Verona department store damaged in a mysterious fire and explosion early today, was turned over to Assistant County Detective Chief James S. McGinley by Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr.

The fire marshal questioned Spirer, who said to him:

"I don't know who would do this to me."

Pfarr said he learned Spirer had $15,000 insurance on the building and $25,000 upon the stock. Spirer estimated his loss at $18,000.

The building, a two-story brick structure, located at 701-703 South avenue, Verona, was destroyed and the lives of three families living on the second floor were endangered.

Pfarr said a quantity of hot water bottles, which had probably contained gasoline, were found in the ruins.

PENSION FRAUD CHARGED IN COUNTY

Auditor Says Many Draw Pay Without Legal Right

Allegheny County is loaded with illegal pensioners, according to an audit report made to the commissioners by M. C. Conick of Main & Co.

A meeting of the pension board will be held next week to purge the list.

Conick's report read at yesterday's commissioners' meeting disclosed that:

Contributions to the fund up to December 31, 1931, by pensioners totaled $34,000, while pensioners have received approximately $857,000 in pensions.

FUND SHORTAGE

Employes not yet pensioned contributed $380,000, all of which is returnable to them on demand, but there is $26,000 less than this amount in the fund in cash and bonds.

The number of pensioners increased 38 per cent and the monthly payments increased 46 per cent this year.

No reserve is carried for present or future payments.

The records of the fund are inadequate and inaccurate.

In explaining his reports to the commissioners Conick said:

"The pension fund is not on an actuarial basis. If those who have contributed to the fund should withdraw their money, the commissioners would have to make good the $26,000 it would be short.

HAVE NO MONEY

"The pensioners would have no money. During the year 1931 40 employes were receiving pensions because they were totally and permanently disabled. Of this number 19 were 50 years of age or over when they entered the county's service. One started at the age of 72, and after 10 years service was pensioned. A system of bookkeeping is needed that will keep the accounts straight."

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said:

"There are a lot on pension who ought to be fired off."

The commissioners, the treasurer and controller who compose the pension board, are going to meet to put it on a business basis next week.

Eight automobiles filled with flowers were in the line of the cortege as it left the home.

WIDOW SCREAMS

A shriek rose from the lips of the veiled Mrs. Rose Bazzano, the widow, as she walked from the home to the automobile that was to convey her to the scene of the burial. She was accompanied by a cousin, and Santos, brother of the dead Volpe associate.

Five children of the Bazzanos lay asleep, it was said, as their father's body was borne from the house. They were Steve, 7; Carmella, 6; John, 5, Josephine, 3, and Paul, 14 months.

Two hundred persons swarmed around the home, some entering to view the body. Mt. Lebanon police, under direction of Capt. John Swoger and Frank C. Cook, Mt. Lebanan township manager, were on duty.

Bazzano's body arrived at his home yesterday.

Meanwhile, the concentrated efforts of Pittsburgh and Brooklyn detectives to bring somebody to justice for the killings were fruitless.

SPINELLI HUNT VAIN

They are still looking for the elusive "Little Joe" Spinelli who is already under indictment for two former racket slayings.

Last night and early today homicide sleuths reported they were still trailing clues to his whereabouts, but they refused to divulge the nature of the leads.

Frank Ferris, homicide squad lieutenant, returned to Pittsburgh yesterday with the announcement that his hurried trip to New York and Philadelphia had identified the man who brought the Volpe murderers to Pittsburgh.

The Brooklyn detective, who came here to establish Bazzana's identity, left Pittsburgh last night. He, too, had clues which he wouldn't talk about.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Society Events

SCHOOL SET FETE GUESTS

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

In Sewickley the members of the younger set who are at home just now are having the grandest time imaginable with all sorts of small, informal parties varying long sunny days of golf and tennis and evenings of impromptu dances and bridge.

Many of the informal affairs are being given for house guests, one of them being a tea yesterday afternoon at the Allegheny Country Club. Most of the guests at the small affair were Dobbs Ferry girls.

And among those there was Jane Willis, of Flushing, L. I., house guest of Dorothy Jarvis. Dorothy and Jane were schoolmates at Dobbs Ferry.

Another out-of-town girl at the tea was Helen Henderson, of Brookville, Pa., who is the guest of Nancy Scott Craig.

Susan O'Neil, who left yesterday to join a house party in the East, was one of the girls entertaining informally for Helen. She gave a luncheon recently.

* * *

Many of the smart set who've remained in town until now are taking brief holidays from Pittsburgh. Mrs. Andrew K. Black, of Sewickley, and her son, Andrew K. Black III, have just left by motor for Gloucester, Mass. They plan to visit friends on Cape Cod, I understand. Mr. Black will leave on Sunday.

Motor In East

* * *

Sailing yesterday from New York on the S. S. Samaria, were Mrs. John J. Kennedy and her daughter, Betty. They'll visit in England and Scotland, motoring through the Shakespeare country and Scotland. They will sail for home from Glasgow expecting to be back in the States by mid-September.

* * *

We're going to have some particularly interesting weddings this fall, and today comes news of another one to star to the September calendar.

September Wedding

Mary Ernst Cooper, daughter of the Howel S. Coopers, of Sewickley, has named Saturday, September 10, as the date for her marriage to Roger Robb, son of Justice and Mrs. Charles H. Robb, of Washington.

They plan to be married in St. Barnabas Episcopal Church in Falmouth, Cape Cod, Mass.

Their engagement was made known at a tea Mrs. Cooper gave over a year ago in the Edgeworth Club to present her daughter.

Mary attended Dana Hall, Wellesley College and is a graduate of Vassar, and her fiance is a graduate of Yale, class of 1928; of the Yale Law School, 1931, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of Corby Court.

* * *

Two more members of the younger set have deserted town for Beaumaris, Canada, Mary Franklin Robison and Fredericka Holdship. They are guests of the William D. Georges.

* * *

And Margaret Crawford, artist daughter of the George Gordon Crawfords, of the Schenley Apartments, is home from Europe, with Norway and Sweden attracting her the greater part of her trip.

State Federation Art Chairman To Lecture

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In the new year books that come filtering in on these dull days, one notices the name of Mrs. J. Charles Runk listed as speaker before several groups. Mrs. Runk is the extremely active district chairman of art in the fine arts department of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. She gave several talks last year and is offering the same courtesy this season with no charge other than for transportation.

One of her talks, "Painting With Light," she gives in connection with the 1931 Eastman collection of prize winning photographs. This consists of 20 mounted enlarged photographs which have been loaned by the company. Virtually the whole world is represented in the informal portraits, scenes, sports and occupations depicted—a bull fight from Spain, Danish sailors reefing a sail, a Belgian wine merchant in his cellar, a stork's nest stops a German chimney, a striking snow scene from Switzerland and many others.

Charts Shown

In conjunction with these prints, a series of charts shows how to make, mount and frame pictures, a gift from Ross Altwater, who has given Mrs. Runk invaluable assistance in compiling her lecture.

This and six other "traveloans" are sent out by the State Federation under its fine arts department at a nominal fee which covers transportation. The other groups include 39 colored museum prints of famous portraits, beginning with early Italian and coming down to Twentieth Century American; famous landscapes, Nineteenth Century French art, madonnas (which make an particularly appropriate program for Christmas), a collection of works of Albrecht Durer—some wood-block cuttings, some sketches and oil painting prints; and English and French posters. The poster collection has a special appeal for children and is used in schools. Nearly all the loans are accompanied by lecture notes.

Reservations for the annual outing of the Girls' Society of St. Wenceslaus Church are being taken by Miss Mary Straka, Howard street, North Side. The outing is scheduled for tomorrow at Bill's Farm, Wexford.

Charlotte Marks Honor Guest At Luncheon

Entertainments and showers of gifts are making late August days most exciting for many young women who are planning weddings for the coming weeks.

Among these is Miss Charlotte E. Marks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Marks, of Lexington avenue, Aspinwall, who has named August 24 as the date for her marriage to Stanley Schade. The wedding will take place in the Marks home.

In honor of Miss Marks, Mrs. William H. Webb, of Mayfair road, Mt. Lebanon, is entertaining this afternoon at the Pines with a bridge-luncheon, to be followed by a shower of gifts for the bride's kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Burry and family, of Grenet street, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bell and H. D. Bell, of Beverly place, are at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City.

Shannopin Country Club members will be much entertained during the coming weeks. The Saturday afternoon bridge parties will be continued throughout the remainder of the month. On Saturday, a week from today, Mrs. A. W. Forsyth will be hostess, on August 27 Mrs. R. L. Thompson, Jr., will be hostess, and today, Mrs. E. K. Courtney is in charge.

Parties At Club

On Labor Day, September 5, there will be a dinner-dance at the club.

New Future Home Aided Many in July

New Future Home, which is temporarily closed for repairs, reports 914 meals served during July. Fifty-five women and 10 children were received during the month and lodging was furnished for 318. Positions were obtained for four persons, other assistance was given to 51, and three hospital cases were looked after.

Many Pittsburghers Visit in New York

Ever so many Pittsburghers have been stopping in New York either on their way to or from summer resorts, or on visits to Gotham for its own sake.

Among those recently there, all of whom stopped at the Waldorf-Astoria, were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Flaccus, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, of the Schenley Apartments, and Miss Trixie I. Boyle, of the Hotel Schenley; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Young, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. English, Mrs. Mary B. Seaver, of the Morrowfield; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Crutchfield, Miss Evelyn Evans, of Beechwood boulevard.

Bradford Junior Club Holds Swimming Party

A decidedly diversified program of activities is being followed by the Junior Club of Bradford Woods this summer. This evening the members will have a swimming party at Winds Grove and after their swim they will go to the home of Miss Olive and Miss Anna Mary Scott for a weiner roast. The social committee composed of Miss Jane Crumay, Mrs. Raymond A. Marter, Miss Kathryn Hannan and Miss Lois Hartman has arranged the affair.

Dr. Crandall Plans Health Club Picnic

Members of the Pittsburgh Health Club will be guests of Dr. Louis M. Crandall at his Pittsburgh Health School in Library tomorrow. The club will go out for a basket picnic on the school grounds, the host furnishing buttermilk. Swimming and boating on the lake will be other features and in the evening a meeting will be held with addresses by Dr. Crandall, Dr. William J. Van Essen, vice president of the club, and Andrew G. Smith.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Quit Being Burden to Parents

Shall Bee give up her friends; or shall she leave home?

She doesn't want to do either one, but what with rows and riots going on, things are getting pretty tough for a kid who longs for a little clean fun. For Mom can't seem to understand, and as for Step-Dad—well—

"They both yell at me, and call my friends tramps!" she wails. "And he just hates me!"

What can a youngster do, in a case like that?

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I've got something on my mind that I simply have to tell somebody. I don't know where else to go, so you are elected to be my audience. I'll be 18 in August. I graduated from high a year ago, but haven't been able to get even a single job since. My mother and stepfather both work, but the pay doesn't amount to much. I wish I could find work.

HATED BY STEP-FATHER

"But here is my real problem. My mother refers to all my friends as 'riff-raff,' and won't give even one of them credit for having any brains. My stepfather simply hates me, so you see my home isn't one of those they write about in songs.

"He can't be annoyed with anyone having any fun. I've invited my friends over twice, and both times the family parked in the kitchen, and every time I went near them they wanted to know when the company was going home. He even said he would go out and 'tell them to beat it' if they didn't go soon.

"Then another Big Noise is about the hours I keep. Last night I was told to 'come home early,' but on the way I met a lad I know and we went for a little ride. I got in about 12:30, which was much too late for a girl who is 'dependent on her folks for everything she gets'—or so I was told.

"I was coming out of my bedroom, when my mother grabbed me. For several minutes I felt nothing but lumps being pounded on my head; then, when she couldn't land a good sock, she grabbed my hair.

"Honestly, they're not a bad bunch. We go out for fun, just like the rest of the folks in this world, but we don't do anything wild. But if I get in late, my mother insinuates things that no good mother wants to think about.

"Should I give up my friends, or leave home? It is either one or the other, and it's a cinch I'm not going to sit home all the time. Help me, please. I need someone else's side of this thing, because I haven't heard anything but yelping for the last three months.

"I love my mother, but she has lived and had friends. Why should she want to deprive me of mine? I hate my step-father.

"BEE."

Yes, kid, I know it seems like a tough deal. And I do sympathize with you, for I was 17 once myself and felt that I was the world's worst martyr, just as you're feeling now.

But I suspect that there's more than one side to your question, and that if you are fair enough to see that other side, it may help you solve your problem.

You've graduated. You have no job. You think that the folks feel you're a burden. Well, are you a burden?

THINK IT OVER

That question startles you, doesn't it? But a 17-year-old girl may be very much of a burden, even to those who love her most; and they have every right to resent it if she is one.

So—just how much do you do to earn the love and gratitude and respect of your family, Sis? You demand co-operation; but how much do you give?

Suppose you sit down and think that over. Try and look at your position from the old folks' eyes. Try and see your friends as they see them. Suppose you were in their shoes, how would you feel? Not so good—huh?

If you don't want to be treated as a child, don't act like one, Bee. Begin to make a regular life for yourself, and do some regular work, even if you can't get a job outside the home.

Show your mother and stepfather that you have ideas in your head besides selfish fun. Show a friendly willingness to help them carry their load. Take over a definite part of the cooking and cleaning, make their lives easier for them, and I'll bet they'll be willing to make yours easier for you.

BLACK CHIFFON REGAINS FAVOR AS DINNER-DANCE ATTIRE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—There is a revival of the black chiffon dinner and dance dress in Paris this summer. French women, after several seasons of wearing brilliant reds, bright blues and greens, and rich dark colors, are again turning to their old favorite—the formal black dress—and are wearing it in sheer chiffons, georgettes, wool crepes and other light-weight fabrics.

* * *

THIS NEW favorite among black dresses takes on a new 1932 character. It combines the two fashion developments of recent years—long skirts and semi-long sleeves—to make the kind of gown which is slightly formal, yet may be worn in public in complete good taste. Frequently it shows some slight touch of decoration and is worn with daytime accessories—gloves, hat and leather handbag.

* * *

CHANEL'S CHIFFON dinner dress is seen often in Paris these days. It is one of the new type and is neither tailored nor fanciful, yet a bit of both. The skirt is extremely full, yet takes to straight lines because of its many tiny plaits. The full sleeves reach halfway between elbow and wrist, but start from a low yoke, which gives the desired wide-shouldered narrow-hipped effect.

* * *

THERE ARE two simple touches of adornment on this frock—a single band of lace, used as a lining for the lower edge of the shoulder yoke, and crystal buttons which mark the back fastening. The buttons, in graduated sizes, reach from the neckline to the end of the skirt-yoke.

* * *

THIS CHANEL gown, seen recently in Paris, was worn with the accessories sketched—the Bruyere hat of black felt, with black and white ball ornaments; the Greco shoes of black suede with satin yoke and the black suede bag with white metallic handle.

Better Spray a Fly Than Swat Him; But in Some Way Get Rid of Him!

Flies have been known to mankind through all time, but it is only within the last 30 years that medical science discovered them to be carriers of disease. Before this discovery flies were a nuisance, of course, but they were regarded as harmless and were permitted to breed in enormous numbers. This was excusable when no one suspected the relationship between flies and disease. It is not excusable today, but unfortunately many still tolerate flies and do not seem to realize the dangers of these insects.

Dr. Copeland

Science has decided that the fly may possibly transmit the germs of more than 30 diseases. Typhoid fever, diarrhea and other summer complaints, it is thought, may be caused by the fly, and though not definitely proved, many authorities believe the germs of infantile paralysis are carried by the fly.

Most individuals instinctively avoid filth. Because of their fear of germs and disease, they refuse to buy food that is not clean. Yet these same persons tolerate the disease-laden fly in their homes.

The home may be scrupulously clean, but if flies are present, germs are present. Bear in mind that even if there is only one fly in the house it is potentially dangerous and should be destroyed. I cannot overemphasize the importance of this attitude toward flies, particularly if there are small children in the family.

Everyone should enlist in the war against the fly, for the menace cannot be successfully combatted unless everybody cooperates.

Cleanliness is the password in this campaign. Filth and decomposed organic matter, such as garbage, must be carefully destroyed or screened from flies. All garbage pails should be scoured and kept covered. Porches, windows and doorways should be screened throughout the summer months. In spite of these precautions, flies may enter the house through open doors, and these must be destroyed.

There are many ways of destroying the fly, but after careful study it has been found that a chemical spray is the most efficient and sanitary method. The spray used must be harmless to humans and to animal pets, but capable of destroying insects.

There are other less desirable methods of killing the fly. Old-fashioned fly-paper is unclean and unsatisfactory. Do not use poisons in saucers, for this is dangerous and should never be used when there are children in the house.

If you use a newspaper or magazine for swatting the fly, destroy the dead fly as well as the soiled paper. A wire swatter is more satisfactory.

If you rid the home of flies you are guarding against many undesirable diseases. Protect your health and the health of your family by a determined campaign against this old and often overlooked menace to health.

Answers to Health Queries

H. H. M. Q.—My feet and legs up to my knees are numb, also my hands; these parts are swelled. What can I do to get rid of the numb feeling?

A.—Removing swelling would overcome numbness. You must find cause of swelling. This may be due to heart or kidney trouble. I would suggest that you consult your physician for an examination.

* * *

M. C. H. Q.—What causes white spots on the finger nails? 2—What should a girl of 17, 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weigh?

A.—This is usually due to some injury to the base of the nail. 2—She should weigh about 118 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

* * *

Mrs. D. W. Q.—What do you advise for a constipated child, 3½ years old?

A—First correct the diet. Give plenty of fruit juices, fresh green vegetables, cereals and water between meals.

* * *

E. K. S. Q.—I am bothered with phlegm in the throat, what do you advise?

A.—This is probably due to nasal catarrh. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

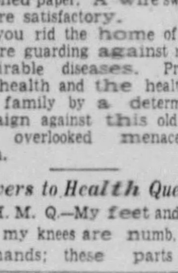
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Safe and Sorry

There is an old proverb which runs to the effect that it is better to be safe than sorry. In Bridge, however, it is possible to be both. The first objective—in fact, the primary objective—in the miniature battle of the "pasteboard armies" is game, and the efforts of the partnership should always be directed toward the attainment of this objective, but always in the background, while the bidding is in progress, should be the rich rewards that go with the making of a realizable Slam.

Mr. B. L. Tighe, Jr., of Jackson, Miss., sent the hand below, advancing the theory that it is the worst bid hand he has ever seen in many years of Bridge playing. Personally, I am inclined to agree with his conclusion, although not with the steps by which he reached it.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4♡ (1)	Pass	Pass (2)	Pass

(1) A very bad bid. The hand contains five losers outside the trump suit and has in it the suggestion of the possibility of losing two tricks in that suit. If opponents hold the remaining strength, the penalty suffered will be a grievous one, whereas South is sure of a further opportunity to bid, as there remain, outside his hand, three Aces, four Kings and three Queens, and it is almost impossible to so distribute these cards as not to give some players the honor strength justifying the bid.

(2) North, according to Mr. Tighe, was a novice at the game, and after his partner's Opening bid and West's pass, stopped to inquire what was the value of a vulnerable Small Slam, if made. Receiving the information he asked for, he then passed.

Of course, all 13 tricks were made in the play of the hand.

As Mr. Tighe, in submitting the hand, states, it is apparent, in view of any Opening bid by South, that North and South must be able to make all 13 tricks. Had South passed, North must have opened the bidding with a Forcing Opening bid of two spades. The bid of four hearts, as a matter of fact, guaranteed greater strength in the heart suit than South possessed, and North, with his magnificent holding, should not have hesitated to bid seven.

However, taking into consideration the human factor, and appreciating, as Mr. Tighe must have done, that his partner was a novice, the best bid on his holding was not the Pre-emptive bid of four hearts, designed to shut out the exchange of information, but the eloquent declaration, "I pass," which, in this case, would almost inevitably have resulted in reaching not only a game contract, but a Slam as well.

Today's Question:

Partner opens with a bid of four hearts. Second Hand passes. What is the correct bid with the following hand?

♠ A K 10 9 6 ♡ — ◇ 6 2 ♣ Q 10 7 4 3 2

Answer: Pass. Partner's Pre-emptive game bid is probably an overbid, made with the specific intent to shut out other declarations. This hand has only 2 honor-tricks, and there is small possibility of a successful Slam.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Note of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After reading this column of yours, all my "good manner" questions seemed to have been answered except one.

I am graduating and I have received many cards of congratulations. Would it be proper to write little notes thanking my friends for their thoughtfulness? I am quite mixed up in the wording of such a letter. Will you kindly help me?

I received bouquets of flowers for the same occasion, and I would like to write notes for the flowers, too. Kindly tell me how these notes should read.

DAILY READER.

In both of these notes, you would first thank the friend for the thoughtfulness, of sending either the card of congratulations or the flowers, and then chat about the card or the flowers. That is, say something about the friendliness of the message on the card, and your appreciation of it, and, in the case of the flowers, something about their beauty, of course, and of your appreciation of them. For instance:

Dear Mary:

You made me so happy on my graduation day when, as usual, you planned one of your lovely presents for me. What a devoted friend you are, and how I do love you! The gardenias were quite the most radiant and fragrant ones I have ever seen, and I wish I could tell you what joy they brought me. I wore them with great pride that afternoon, to a commencement tea, and they were perfect companions.

Thank you, thank you, with all my heart, for your goodness to me. And I do hope that I am to see you soon . . . may I, please?

Devotedly,

Market Circles Watching Bond List for Cue To Situation.

There is an increasingly strong disposition in financial quarters to keep a close eye on the bond market for the real cue to the future trend of security prices in general. The action of bonds Thursday and again yesterday in maintaining the rising trend on large dealings is looked upon not alone as an augury against any unusually severe or protracted decline in stocks at this stage, but, moreover, as establishing an increasingly strong foundation for the future. Bonds are now within about 6½ average points of the year's high, touched in March, and there is a steady broadening of demand for secondary issues, particularly rails and utility liens.

Recent buying of Chesapeake and Ohio, while probably influenced largely by the spectacular rise in the general market, is based in part at least on the generally held belief that the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ cents will be ordered when directors meet next Tuesday. Chesapeake and Ohio now ranks as the only big carrier which has been able to maintain its dividend unchanged through the long period of hardship. The present rate was established after the 4-for-1 split-up in 1930, and is equivalent to the $10 rate maintained on the old stock from the middle of 1927.

American Home Products Corporation showed only a slight falling off in profit in the first half of the current year and earnings were more than sufficient to cover the dividend requirements for the period. The report for the first six months, to be published shortly, will probably show earnings slightly in excess of $1,500,000, or a few cents more than $2.50 a share on the 611,000 shares of stock. The company pays $4.20 a share annually.

Nathan Adams, former Dallas banker, and now a member of the Home Loan Bank Board, lunched with James G. Stone, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, yesterday. The two discussed the corporation being formed in New York to sponsor purchases of raw materials. While Mr. Adams would not quote Mr. Stone's reaction to the commodity pool, the idea is he found the farm board head favorable to it. In Mr. Adams' opinion, the board would be willing to sell its stabilization stocks of wheat and cotton to the commodity pool should the latter bid for them.

Close followers of the cotton situation were inclined to the belief that the spectacular rise since Tuesday had served to undermine the market's position somewhat and left it vulnerable to realizing. At the same time estimates on the forthcoming Census Bureau report on domestic mill consumption were interpreted bearishly, indicating total takings in July at around 250,000 bales against 321,000 in June and 451,000 in July last year. This would bring total domestic mill takings for the statistical year to July 31 to around 4,840,000 bales against 5,263,000 bales in the previous 12 months.

After two years of unprofitable business due to a combination of price-cutting in alcohol and high raw material prices, American Commercial Alcohol Corporation is recovering its normal earning power, with the return of stabilization to the industry. Net profits in the first six months this year was $244,405, equal to $1.25 a share on 194,747 shares, against net loss of $42,747 in the first half 1931, and loss of $597,651 for the year 1931. In 1930, net loss of $56,381 was reported and in 1929, the last profitable year, net was $1,395,716.

RUSSIA DENIES LOAN RUMOR

MOSCOW, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—An authoritative denial was issued yesterday of reports published in New York that Soviet Russia contemplates floating a bond issue in the United States.

The Soviet government has not attempted to market any domestic loan in America or other foreign countries, it was said, nor does it intend to try to do so so long as there is no official relationship between the two countries.

It was supposed that the reports in New York arose from the fact that a recent domestic loan issued to finance the last year of the five-year plan contained a provision that the bonds might be purchased in foreign currency and would draw interest in the same currency at the regular rate of 10 per cent.

Thompson Products Gets GMO Business

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The manufacturing of valves for all General Motors automobiles became exclusively a Cleveland industry today.

Concentration of this manufacturing, amounting to more than $1,000,000 a year, in the Thompson Products, Inc., here, was announced by Thompson officials last night.

Under the new arrangement, Thompson acquires General Motors' own valve plant and equipment at Muncie, Ind., and will begin immediate removal of it to Cleveland.

MARKET RISE TURNED U. S. SENTIMENT

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The British national habit of regarding wealth in terms of realized income, rather than capital, makes for clearer thinking.

Over here, we are stock market-minded, and visualize our well being in terms of capital values, rather than income.

Accordingly, during almost three years of gloomy bear markets, the American public was psychologically depressed even more than underlying conditions warranted.

Mr. Rukeyser

In the snap back of security and commodity prices, there has accordingly been a turn in "sentiment."

Since July 1, it has been computed in Wall Street that $10,000,000,000 has been added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. And the Wall Street Journal goes as far as to assume that "an increase of more than $10,000,000,000 in the basis for purchasing power in this country has risen from the appreciation in market value of stocks."

BENEFITS SEEN

The delusive tendency to regard capital appreciation as income has been inculcated by the arbitrary income tax law, which regards capital gains as taxable income. In Great Britain such gains are not treated as income. Income is conceived as a recurrent flow of benefits, whereas capital appreciation is a mark-up, which does not necessarily recur annually, but which in fact over the long pull is partially offset by capital depreciation.

But apart from academic niceties, the practical question is how much stimulus will brass-tacks business — production and distribution — get from the improved feeling?

It would be stupid to assume that there will be no benefits, provided the speculative advances should be retained.

Unquestionably, the panic psychology, which has been broken, was restraining some of those with means from spending normally. To the extent that they feel richer and to the extent that they believe that the worst is over, they may be expected to spend a larger portion of their available income.

BUYING POWER LOW

Specifically, a millionaire in Boston long told his friends that he would buy a new automobile when American Telephone reached par. His keeping of his pledge perhaps heartened the industry.

But the great restraint on normal business is the lack of buying power among 8,000,000 workers on the farms, who have been impoverished by low prices, and among 10,000,000 unemployed in the cities. These men and their families have not been indulging in a buyers' strike because of sentiment; they have lacked the wherewithal, and still need something more substantial than psychological improvement.

But the sentimental gains should not be undervalued, for they are a prelude to making effective essential corrective moves.

While a majority of bankers are still painfully severe, a few of the more intelligent ones are carefully making new contacts and friendships, which will inure to the profit of their institutions in the next cycle of prosperity, when all bankers through new business departments will be sending out salesmen to lug in borrowers.

Wall Street Spectator

Business Expected To Lend Hand To Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—The need for caution this column has been stressing for the last two days was amply borne out by the market's nose dive yesterday.

Both stocks and commodities had become top heavy following the revival of speculative enthusiasm. The break will serve to clear this up and bring a healthier tone to the market.

It would be advisable to stand aside until next week to see how the situation shapes up.

The speed with which stocks went down and the heavy volume indicated stop-loss orders were being touched off all along the line.

Shrewd observers are inclined to look for a trading range now with the top around 70 on the industrial averages.

There is an enormous amount of resistance at this level on the charts since the market established a triple bottom there before it went through this year. It is logical to expect that business will have to come along and lend a hand if stocks are to push through and make the widely-predicted 100 per cent recovery. It would seem now, too, that the market will keep more in line with trade developments from now on.

One thing to remember, though, is that stocks are still in a bullish trend. A shake-out at this time does not mean that the efforts to raise the price level being made by bankers and the administration have been abandoned. And it is still a good thing not to play the short side, for stocks are moving very fast.

LOTT'S EX-WIFE WEDS AGAIN

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Abigail Allen Lott, former wife of George Martin Lott, Davis Cup tennis player, today had been revealed by her parents as the bride of Henry Alexander Greene, of Haverford, Pa.

The ceremony took place Thursday at the summer home of the bride's parents in French, Wyoming County, Pa. Only a few relatives and close friends were present.

As a debutante, the bride startled society by eloping to Elkton, Md., with the international tennis star after a whirlwind courtship of a few weeks. That was in October 1930, but in less than a year the couple were divorced.

Greene is 26, a graduate of Princeton, and is connected with an insurance company.

FRIEND WRECKS NEW AUTO

If Albert Modena, 6 Shetland avenue, had delayed for five minutes the purchase of his new automobile last night, both his and his friend's outlook today might have been considerably brighter.

Just as Modena was signing the transfer papers for the automobile, purchased from Harry Mock, 605 Seventeenth street, Munhall, his friend, Amillo Galluzzo, 8 Shetland avenue, decided to test the brakes on the machine, police said.

The machine got beyond Galluzzo's control, ran down the hill and crashed into the parked machine of Vincent Tusco, 7344 Dixon street, Swissvale, damaging it $100, police said.

Galluzzo was held on a charge of tampering with an automobile. Modena, the new owner, has been asked to pay the damages.

GILDA'S FATHER SENT TO HOME

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Gilda Gray, stage dancer, said here today she had instructed her attorney to have her father, Max Michalski, committed to an old man's home in Milwaukee, where the news dispatches indicated he had been receiving county aid. She said:

"My father and I have never been able to get along. Now it is time to put a stop to it. I've been supporting my father ever since I was old enough to work. My son is not dependent on charity. What do you think I am working for now? I put him in a military academy and my father took him out. I'm going to send my son to school in Switzerland."

Can't Prove Meteor Perseid Fragment

ARCHIE, Mo., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Dr. E. S. Haynes, University of Missouri astronomer, said he was unable to conclude from the evidence at hand whether fragments which fell from the sky near here Wednesday were parts of a Perseid meteor.

Dr. Haynes expected to reach a decision after obtaining statements from other persons who witnessed puffs of smoke, heard a whistling sound and felt the ground tremble as three of the fragments fell.

Dog Races to Aid Bridgeville Needy

Funds for the unemployed of Bridgeville and South Fayette Township will be raised by a program of dog races to be run nightly at the Bridgeville track beginning Tuesday night. Nine races will be on the card each night.

The program will be sponsored by the Legion Kennel Club, formed by the Bridgeville Post, American Legion; the Bridgeville Welfare and Relief Association, and the South Fayette Township Welfare and Relief Association.

STEEL TRADE'S CONFIDENCE ABIDES

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production this week has been at about 14 per cent, the same as last week, July as a whole averaged 14.66 per cent, against 15.96 per cent for June, according to the official reports.

Some mills have been closed to accumulate orders so as to have heavier runs and lower costs, a notable case being that of the South Chicago plant. Predictions are that there will be such an increase in steel production before the close of the month as to make August run distinctly above the July rate.

The steel trade is not disappointed that the great improvement in sentiment all around has not thus far worked out in heavier steel buying. In no circumstances has material improvement ever been expected in July or August, nor has such improvement ever occurred.

Recent predictions are not altered, that the steel trade is to have a very substantial improvement. The average time set is the latter half of September, a few observers expecting noticeable improvement late this month, while some would be content to see real improvement begin early in October.

USERS' STOCKS LOW

The first marked increase in buying is expected to come by way of replenishment of inventories, now down to virtually nothing all around. Jobbers would come first in this connection, and in the last week a little increase in jobber buying, with a great increase in interest, has been noted. Easier credit conditions will furnish one of the influences.

Suddenly chances have appeared of line pipe buying for the remainder of the season, hitherto regarded as a closed book, because the better financial condition and outlook may make it possible to finance pipe line work.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has offered large loans to railroads for repair of rolling stock and such repairs as are needed will be made shortly.

The first two weeks of August have shown a slight decrease in steel production as compared with the last two weeks of June, taking a period on each side of the traditionally dullest month of the year. The decrease is accounted for, with something to spare, by decreases in automobile and tin plate production. The automobile industry is down to a very light operation.

PRICES HOLD FIRM

Fabricated structural steel lettings reported this week totaled about 12,000 tons, following two weeks at 16,000 tons, approximately the average of the whole year to date. Lettings have been heavier since May 1 than the rate in the first four months of the year, and weekly reports of the Department of Commerce show slightly rising shipments of the fabricating shops since the middle of May.

The finished steel price structure is in very satisfactory shape from the viewpoint of sellers.

A much stronger tone has developed in the Pittsburgh district scrap market. Dealers who sold heavy melting scrap recently at the new low price of $8 are having difficulty in covering even at that figure. The Chicago market advanced 50 cents in the week.

CARRIERS LEAD FRESH STOCK UPTURN

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The stock market turned upward under leadership of the rails in the early trading today.

There was a little further selling at the start, in continuation of a wave of liquidation late yesterday, but during the first half hour, initial losses were largely regained. Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific and International Harvester rallied a point, and Case, which stiffened at the start, got up 2 after yesterday's drop of 13½. American Telephone regained a loss of 1¼, and sold 1 point higher. U. S. Steel also recovered a small loss to trade up a fraction.

Wall street brokerage quarters were not much disturbed by the severe setback of the previous session, for it had been widely felt that bullish speculation was being carried to excess, and that a good "shakeout" would be "healthy." Chart readers pointed out that the market could lose from a third to half of its extreme rise July 8, without exceeding the limits of a technical reaction, or definitely indicating a change in the major trend.

Weekend trade advices were again optimistic, pointing to a substantial pickup in some wholesale lines, notably textiles, and maintenance of the general improvement in sentiment. Retail trade was said to have held up well for the season, but heavy industries remained quiet. Sentiment in the automobile industry was said to have improved considerably, although production has been sharply curtailed this month.

Foreign exchanges opened a little higher, with sterling cables up ⅝ of a cent to $3.48.

—I I I—

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Suicide Room!

I live in a suicide room
High over Washington Square,
Where the sun comes in every morning
To see if I'm still there.

And the moon looks in every evening
In the stealth of its silver barrage!
And chuckles and lingers a moment
To wish me bon voyage.

And all through the day there's a south wind
That darts through my muddled domain,
And it tags me and turns me and whispers—
Why go on with the pain?

Yet down in my heart there's a clamor
To live and to laugh and to sin;
But the sun and the moon and south wind
Are stronger than I—and they win!

Good Rating!

Richy Craig, Jr., has been giving a quarter every day for the past two weeks to a crippled beggar who stations himself at 45th and Broadway. After having been out of town for a day he approached the fellow the following afternoon and gave him his regular donation.

"Thanks, very much, Mr. Craig," the cripple said, "but you know you owe me from yesterday?"

Craig smiled, reached into his pocket, and finding only a dime, chirped:

"Well this is all I've got. I guess I'll have to owe you 15 cents until tomorrow."

"Oh, that's okay," okayed the beggar, "your credit's good with me."

Oop!

Things are so bad at the burlesk houses, avers Al Schwartz, that they're extending the runways into the street so the gals won't get lonesome.

Add Nod-Men

According to Art Jarrett's public relations counsel, the following lengthy conversation between two Hollywoodmen was overheard in the Astor lobby:

"I've been made a third assistant director today."

"Yes?"

"Yes!"

A Matter of Distance

Several Broadwayites were gathered last night in a Times Square office to listen to the radio debut of a fellow entertainer. After the first 10 minutes of the broadcast, one of the teardowners said:

"It sounds as though Jim was standing too near the mike."

"Too near the mike?" shouted Jackie Osterman. "You mean too near the station."

PIRATES

The miserable condition of the theater is not benefited any by the latest type of pirate who has entered the parasitical ranks on Broadway. During a matinee performance of "Of Thee I Sing" last week, an observer counted six stenographers making verbatim notes of the lines spoken on the stage.

The purpose of these notes, if you haven't guessed already, is for the reproduction of the better parts of the show at summer hotels and camps throughout the East. And without payment of royalties, of course.

During the past two months, 16 performances of "Of Thee I Sing" alone were given by amateur groups in the Adirondack and Catskill mountain areas. Many of the pirates are brazen enough to use the original title of the play. However, one employed his own originality, injected two of the song hits from "The Cat and the Fiddle," and advertised the production under the title, "Sweet Land of Liberty."

OK With Geo., OK With Me

D. L. Snyder, of New Haven, Conn., joins me in calling Mr. Hoover's attention to an excerpt from a contract which George Washington made with his Mount Vernon gardener.

It was stipulated that, in addition to his annual wage, the fellow was to be given "four dollars at Christmas with which he may be drunk for four days and four nights; two dollars at Easter to effect the same purpose; two dollars at Whitsuntide to be drunk for two days; a dram in the morning and a drink of grog at dinner at noon."

No Commas!

The proofreader of that morning want-ad section must have been suffering from a bad hang-over when the following comma-less insertion found its way into the columns:

"Machinist dies experimental work varied experience!"

Ask Dad!

A young doctor was assigned to his first confinement case by his college professor, according to Charles Wagner, and instructed to report immediately after the child was born. A few hours later the news came that "everything was fine, only the baby died."

The following day the professor met the medico and tried to console him.

"Don't worry," he said, "that happens to the best of us. It's not the doctor's fault because a child dies. You did your best, didn't you?"

"I know," cried the beginner. "It wouldn't be so bad if it was only the baby, but to make matters worse, the mother also died this morning."

"Well, don't let that worry you either; it happens every day," assured the prof. "But tell me, is the father all right?"

Marathon of Olympics Filmed

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The marathon classic and the aquatic events at the Olympic games in Los Angeles provide thrill after thrill to the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Not least of these thrills is provided by Juan Carlos Zabala, the 20-year-old Argentina lad who captured the marathon crown from a field of 27 starters, to the frenzied delight of 70,000 spectators.

From the start Zabala set the pace and as the great race nears the end, many of the contestants drop from exhaustion, but not Zabala. Completing the more than 26 miles of the race far ahead of the nearest contestants, he gleefully tells in his own language, without pausing for breath, his feelings of triumph in breaking the Olympic record that that classic.

YANKEE GIRLS WIN

Other pictures show the United States team winning the 400 meter relays for girls; Miyazaki, the Japanese school boy capturing the 100 meter swim; "Mickey Riley" Galitzen, Southern California University student, winning the diving crown, and Helene Madison, sensational Seattle girl, smashing the Olympic record in the 100 meter dash. Most of the victors have a few words to say, and there is a graphic description of the various events by The Globe Trotter.

Hearst Metrotone News is being shown in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters.

WALES DEDICATES SHRINE

In the presence of President Lebrun and Premier Herriot, the Prince of Wales dedicates a monument to the 73,000 of Britain's war dead on the Somme district of France. The prince inspects the troops assembled for the ceremony and then delivers his dedicatory speech.

President Hoover, on his fifty-eighth birthday, is visited in the White House grounds by Boy Scouts from the South and East. Thornton Hart, of Warrenton, Va., presents the President with a croaker fish, a piscatorial delicacy in the South. Other scouts from Brooklyn and Washington present him with a bridge card set and a scroll bearing a message of cheer.

BASQUE FESTIVAL

Seldom has the Basque region in Spain been pictured, but Hearst Metrotone News brings a huge assembly of peasants participating in a picturesque festival. It is held in an outdoor arena and 3,000 natives engage in a quaint dance to the strains of wierd music.

Even in Alaska they have their heat waves. Pictures show girls in bathing suits keeping cool by frolicking on small icebergs broken off the glaciers.

Harness horses race for the Marshall House stakes, one of the outstanding races in the Grand Circuit at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H. Ankabor trots home to win the $10,000 purse.

Good Picture In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Swell picture in the Warner, "Tom Brown of Culver" it is called, and it has a background of student life at Culver, famous military school. It has no dames, no heart romance of any kind, no exciting football games nor other evidence of student rivalry involving other institutions of learning. In spite of all these "nos" there is no negative quality in the picture, which is clean, non-sexy and entertaining in the highest degree. It is more than elevating—rather exalting—as the spectator reflects that he is seeing boys—one boy in particular—fighting for manhood, and winning.

"Tom Brown" is played by Tom Brown. The picture is by Universal, producer of "All Quiet on the Western Front," which established Lewis Ayres, and of "The Spirit of Notre Dame," which did the same for Andy Devine. In like manner, "Tom Brown of Culver" should be the making of young Tom Brown, the actor, so well does he portray a student who fights down rebellion within himself—an inborn feeling of "what's the use?"

Slim Summerville has a great role, too—a big-hearted war veteran, who befriends a fatherless and motherless boy, and, through the instrumentality of the American Legion, has him sent to school. In this one Slim is not the buffoon he usually is, but his part is not without comedy. H. B. Warner gives an excellent portrayal in a part that provides a surprise element to the film and Richard Cromwell reflects the fine spirit of youth as Tom Brown's roommate.

"Tom Brown of Culver" is distinctly a picture to see.

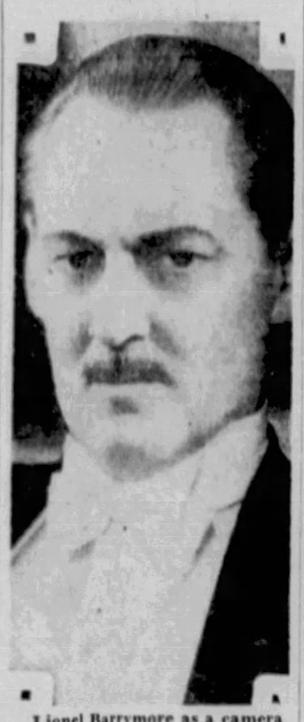
Portrait



Lionel Barrymore as a camera study. With his sister, Ethel, and brother, John, he is now engaged in filming a picture about that sinister Russian figure, "Rasputin, the Black Monk."

Kay Francis, Powell in Stanley

By EDWARD W. GOSS

A satisfying picture, cleverly played and directed, is "Jewel Robbery," a William Powell and Kay Francis vehicle being displayed in the Stanley.

Powell appears as a robber extraordinary. He is no common crook by any means. His manners are faultless and his dress correct. He brooks no strong-arm methods in pursuing his trade or profession. Instead he finds sagacity, grace and quickness of mind of more benefit. Powell, the robber, is extremely superior.

Kay Francis also plays a superior person. Her's is the life most women dream about—a millionaire husband, very devoted; nothing much to do except seek diversion and buy jewelry. It is this lady's weakness for jewels that throws her in the path of the unusual robber. That is enough to set off a romance. No woman could possibly resist the appeal of the robber, especially a rich young woman suffering from a touch of boredom and a husband who has a tendency to cramp her style.

The entire film is entertaining with Powell and Miss Francis turning in their usual good portrayals. Everything common to the usual crook film is absent. Certain it is that no crook could operate like Powell's crook, and several situations give free flight to the imagination. But all that helps to give the picture success.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 13.

To the Editor, Sun Telegraph:

Well he did it. Mr. Hoover held his handkerchief up and saw which way the old "noble experiment" was blowing and joined in the parade. You can talk "morals" and all that, but when the votes lay the other way, why they sho' go with 'em.

Now the question is where are the "drys" going? Both sides are wet and the poor old dry hasn't got a soul to vote for. He is Roosevelt's "forgotten man." Yours, WILL.

Who Murders This Lady In Penn?

By GEORGE SEIBEL

There's a very fine murder mystery romance on the screen in the Penn Theater this week. The lady is strangled as soon as the story begins, and we see who does it, and the perpetrator has such a complete alibi that it doesn't seem possible to catch him. On the other hand, the lady's lover, who didn't kill her, is enmeshed in such a web of circumstantial evidence that it doesn't seem possible for him to escape the gallows.

Mr. Seibel

But when Richard Arlen is suspected of a crime, and has such a good-looking sister as Adrienne Ames, everybody knows he will get off though the picture is called "Guilty as Hell." That's another one of those titles stolen from the Beadle Dime Novels of a generation ago. The picture is based on the successful play, "Riddle Me This," which will be new to nearly all the audience, and has not been spoiled in the screening.

The principal interest is in Edmund Lowe as a slick and snappy reporter, and Victor McLaglen as a rather slow-witted sleuth. But between them they do as well as Holmes and Watson ever did. If they nearly hang the innocent man that is the hard luck common in Hollywood. In the end they do fasten the guilt on the right one, after a running duel through every reel from mild repartee to thug strangleholds. Henry Stephenson as a smooth-bore villain also deserves a few nosegays and boutonnieres.

It's a very fine picture, made out of much new material, well pieced together, and it's hard to say whether there are more thrills or more laughs. The same may be said of the comedy in which the Boy Friends are nearly devoured by cannibals while trying to find a tune more original than Yankee Doodle.

2-Day Show For Trade

An audience composed entirely of theater owners and operators will attend a series of special screen shows in the Davis September 22 and 23. Thirteen or more feature length pictures, as well as dozens of shorts, will be shown. All told, the work of hundreds of outstanding film performers will be viewed by the exhibitors.

The occasion is the Warner Brothers national exhibit, the first showing of its kind. It will open with a luncheon in the William Penn Hotel, which will be headquarters for the exhibitors.

John H. Harris general manager of the local Warner-First National office, announces that the feature pictures to be screened will include "The Crooner," "Doctor X," "Two Against the World," "One Way Passage" "Blessed Event," "Successful Calamity," "Life Begins," "The Crash," "Tiger Shark," "Cabin in the Cotton" "Son of Russia," "Three on a Match" and "They Call It Sin."

Although the general public will not be admitted to the showings, special invitations have been extended by Warner-First National to civic officials, newspaper critics and officers of local organizations.

The Warner Brothers national exhibit will be held simultaneously in 35 major cities and the opinions of those attending it will be considered as a guide in preparing future pictures, according to J. L. Warner, executive in charge of production.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

All Even in the End

THOUGH NO newspaper ever housed such a complete collection of nuts as the movies would have you believe, the average sheet always has its quota of stews, queer guys, columnists and other weird individuals. In my days I have certainly come across a bunch of curious birds, but I think the outstanding curiosity in the whole collection was Gentleman Jimmie Dugan.

Jimmie was a Limey, though he hadn't seen the old country for 25 years when I met him. Rumor went that his real name was Jonathan Montague and that he was a scion of one of England's oldest and snootiest families. After graduating with all sorts of honors at Oxford University, he hit the booze trail and ended up somewhere in the Yukon.

I say "ended up" because it was apparently there that Jonathan Montague, to save further black marks on the family escutcheon, had himself officially killed and adopted the monniker of Jimmie Dugan, which he took from the name of a popular brand of firewater that everybody drank in those days.

Just how he came to adopt this particular name was typical of Jimmie. He had been on a seven-day bender and ended up in a mining camp hospital. When he came to, a doctor, standing over him, asked him his name.

"Make it a Jimmie Dugan," was the reply. And from that day the name stuck.

In spite, however, of all this bumming around and wild life, Jimmie never forgot he was a Fellow of Oxford University and a Master of Arts in the classical tongues. Never in his life had a word of slang passed his lips and the average number of long words that Jimmie used in any sentence he uttered would have made even Doc. Webster scratch his head.

When Jimmie said that he was feeling a little pediculous and that his power of ratiocination was slightly enfeebled, he meant that he was feeling lousy and his reasoning powers were on the blink. But that was the way he talked and thus the appelation of "Gentleman" was added to Jimmie Dugan.

When I first met him, he looked after the morgue. That is, the department of a newspaper where information about everybody and anything is filed. And never, in my experience, has there ever been a morgue keeper of the stature of Jimmy. He knew more than was contained in all the files, and it didn't matter what you asked him—from the population of Timbuctoo to the name of Peggy Joyce's first husband, Jimmie could spiel off the dope.

The first time I had occasion to deal with him was, as far as I can remember, in connection with a murder case that resembled the famous English "Jack-the-Ripper" sensation.

Running into the morgue, I shouted:

"Jimmie, give me some dirt on Jack-the-Ripper."

"Oh, yes, young man," Jimmie replied, "Jack-the-Ripper. I presume you mean by the colloquialism 'give me some dirt' that you require information on this somewhat sadistically inclined criminal?"

For the next 10 minutes Jimmie reeled off all he knew about the case, which was plenty. But by the time he had finished, I felt as if I had been dragged by the hair through the 26 volumes of the Oxford dictionary. I never realized, outside of crossword puzzles, that words of such length existed.

Jimmie was the same inside the morgue or out. Drunk or sober. In fact, the drunker he was, the more involved he became. And as he was seldom really sober, it was seldom that an ordinary common or garden individual could understand what Jimmie was really talking about.

A typical story of Jimmie concerns the time he was jugged for being drunk and disorderly. It took a small army of cops to carry him into the station and when they got him there, they decided to let him cool off all night before bringing him in front of the magistrate.

In the morning, cold sober, Jimmie was hailed in front of the judge who asked him if he had anything to say.

"Your honor," began Jimmie, "May I offer my profoundest apologies to the stern guardians of the law with whom I seemingly engaged in a bout of fisticuffs and to whom I apparently directed a somewhat oppobrious flow of—"

"Put that man back in the cell," the judge shouted, "and don't let me see him again until he's sober."

And it took quite a bit of argument to convince the beak that Jimmie was sober and sane! . . .

One day Jimmie disappeared. For months we searched for him in every dive in the city and in every hospital, but it seemed that he had been swallowed up. When Jimmie couldn't be found in a booze shop, jail or hospital, there was just no where else to search for him and we had almost given him up for lost when we got a call from an upper New York sanitarium, telling us that a man by name of Jimmie Dugan was dying of T. B.

They had called us because his newspaper card was the only identification he carried. Several of us hurried out to the hospital and found Jimmie, a mere shadow of his former self, lying in a bed that was surrounded by screens.

"Not a chance that he'll pull through," the doctor told us. "In fact, it is doubtful whether he'll live through the day. We've tried to find out if he had any relatives or friends for the last two weeks, and, finding this newspaper card amongst his belongings, I figured that maybe you boys would know something about him."

As we approached Jimmie, he smiled wanly at us and whispered:

"So, my dear comrades, you tracked the dying man to his lair."

"Why didn't you let us know where you were, Jimmie?" we asked.

"Because, friends, the thing I've hated most in this somewhat predatory life of mine, is sympathy. However, now that you've discovered me, how do I and my friend Death look?"

It was Gene McHugh who answered. He was somewhat gifted with the gab, like Jimmy. And I guess he felt that we'd probably disturb the old man's last hours with our slangy way of talking.

"Why, Jimmie," he said, "you look fine. There is, of course, a certain pallor about you, but we're hoping that you'll soon be on the road to recovery. And one thing, Jimmie, we want you to know. We all hold you in very high esteem, and every one of us is gratified to have been your friend."

Jimmie looked up. He managed a feeble wink.

"Aw, boloney," he said. And those were the last words he ever spoke! . . .

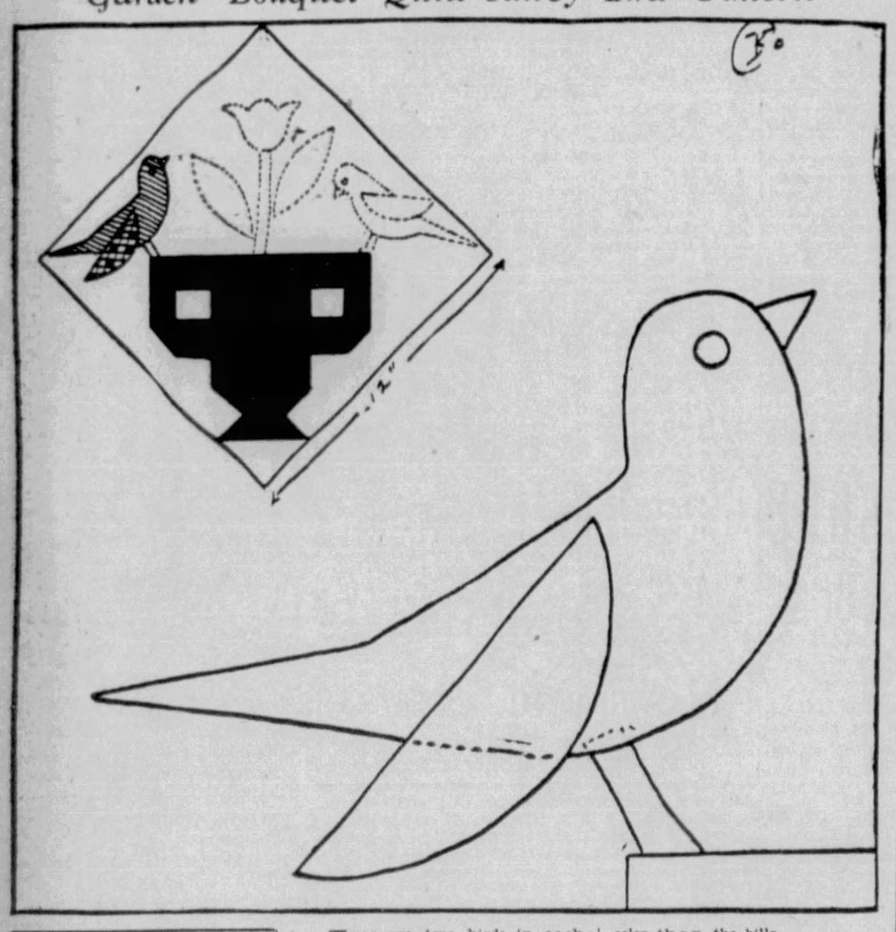
Garden Bouquet Quilt-Saucy Bird Pattern



A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page in care of this paper.

The tulip was standing pertly in the garden urn. It needed only the birds to complete the first block of the new Nancy Page garden bouquet quilt. And here's the bird—a saucy one. One of these will be used on each of the 20 pieced and appliqued blocks to be put in the quilt. So be sure, cautioned Nancy, to keep this pattern.

She suggested to her club members that they cut out the pattern as given in today's paper and paste it in their Nancy Page Scrap Book. Then they would have it for future reference, along with the directions, at any time they might want it.

There are two birds in each block. The pattern for the other bird will be given next week. The club members were undecided whether to make all the birds alike or not. Nancy had these suggestions: Each pair of birds may differ, the colors used to depend upon the flower and its color.

Or each pair may be like every other pair. In that case, the urns and the birds would repeat themselves in coloring 20 times in the quilt. This will make for repetition of pattern and will set off the varied colors used in the flowers.

In making the birds for any one block it is possible to make them exactly alike as to coloring, or one may have a plain body and a figured wing while the other has a figured body and a plain wing.

The bills may be of different colors. So may the eyes. The eyes may be made of a small circle of cloth appliqued or the eyes may be worked with satin stitch in fast colored cotton. The legs ought to be of darker color than the bills.

Bills and eyes had best be of plain, not figured material. So ought the legs. The bird may be lightly traced onto white material to use as guide in appliqueing.

Trace the pattern as given today on stiff light-weight cardboard and then cut out to use as pattern. In laying cardboard on cloth be sure to allow a quarter-inch on all sides for turning raw edges under. Turn these under, baste and press. Then applique birds in place, using fine slanting, invisible hemming stitches.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper please sent 10 cents for each block missing. Also enclose a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

PIRATES FACE REDS TODAY

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Fans Pull for Repeater. | Howleys One-Run Goats.
Grimes Regular Starter. | Another Davis Cup View.
Slab Values Misjudged. | Turf Stars in Test.

BUC RUSH BEGUN IN LAST RED SERIES

THOUGH THE PIRATES were scheduled to tangle with an old jinx in the person of Eppa Jeptha Rixey, the towering 41-year-old lefthander, who has won only two games all season and both of them from Pittsburgh, local fans were hoping that today's engagement at Forbes Field would see history repeating in the matter of putting the Bucs back on the winning road. For it was in their last series with the Reds that the Gibsons took the first big stride in the drive that made them the sensational of the National League until the recent sad eastern trip.

Eppy Rixey

A single victory on June 24 was followed by the sweeping of two doubleheaders in the next 48 hours, and the second of those twin killings on June 26 put the locals in first place to climax their great climb from the cellar. Except for a brief slip into second position on July 1 and 2, the Rovers held the leadership until last Thursday, and up to the time of their nose dive in the east they won 31 out of 42 straight games. Perhaps the present visit of the Reds will be another turning point for the better. The Pirates have beaten Cincinnati seven times in a row since dropping a 4-to-2 decision to Rixey on the morning of Memorial Day.

THE CONFIDENCE OF Burleigh Grimes that he will be able to make a strong finish on the mound for the Cubs after an unimpressive showing to date, due to the effects of a spring illness, is shared by Manager Charley Grimm to such an extent that the latter announces Burleigh will be a starting pitcher from now on.

Rogers Hornsby had relegated the veteran spitballer to bullpen duty and relief roles, but Grimm plans to start Grimes in his regular turn hereafter. There's a hot pennant finish in prospect, and Burleigh thrives on sultry fighting. "I need a guy like that," said Grimm.

JUST HOW LITTLE can be told about pitching values in advance of a pennant race is demonstrated again by the comparative records of Grimes and his former St. Louis stablemate, Flint Rhem.

When Grimes was obtained by the Cubs from the Cardinals, Chicago was thought to have landed a big winner who might mean the pennant. When the Cards turned Rhem over to the Phils, baseball circles merely yawned. No other club was willing to take Rhem as a gift. But against Grimes' record of four victories and eight defeats up to date, Rhem has won 12 games and lost only four.

THE REDS BELIEVE they have established a record for this stage of a season for number of games lost by one run. They have been defeated by a single tally no fewer than 27 times. Six games have been lost by that margin to the Giants, five to the Cubs, four to the Pirates, four to the Cardinals, three to the Dodgers, three to the Braves and two to the Phillies. Fred Lucas has been the chief pitching victim. He tops the list with seven such setbacks, followed by Owen Carroll and Silas Johnson with five each, Larry Benton with four, Ray Kolp with three, Benny Frey with two, and Eppa Rixey with one.

Guy Bush

GUY BUSH, Cub right-hander, whose strong relief pitching after supplanting Lon Warneke here on Thursday knocked the Pirates out of first place for the time being, has never seen Babe Ruth in a baseball uniform.

Bush is looking forward to the day when he will not only get a glimpse of the Bambino in action, but possibly will get a chance to pitch against him. Guy says he doesn't care what Ruth may do to him. He just wants the experience of pitching to the famous slugger. And he thinks that chance may come this fall.

"I'D LIKE TO pitch against Ruth and the Yankees in the next world series," Bush said. "Even if Ruth hit a ball nine miles while I was pitching, I'd get a kick out of it. From what other pitchers have told me, he's liable to hit a home run off any sort of pitch.

"Right now our chances of winning the National League pennant are better than those of the Pirates, I think, for we are in an ideal spot. I believe we'll pull out in front by a nice margin during our coming long stay at home."

THE OLD DODGE of having one boxer impersonate another in the ring is still being worked in New York. And only for a black eye they would have succeeded in getting away with it. Mike Prevetti, scheduled to box Ruby Goldstein at the Long Beach Stadium, became ill after being weighed and examined, and rather than let the money slip away he induced his pal, Abe Dropkin, to substitute for him, without notifying the commission. The switch was not discovered until, when Dropkin started to spar with Goldstein, Dr. Alexander Schiff, examining physician, noted that Abe had a black eye. "Strange," said the doctor. "Prevetti did not have that black eye when I examined him this afternoon." Before the doctor could investigate Dropkin was flattened. The dirt came out when Prevetti called at the commission office to collect his purse. He had intended to give half of it to Dropkin, but neither of them got a penny and licenses were revoked.

AN AMERICAN JUST returned from France, after witnessing the Davis Cup tennis matches as a private citizen, confirms the report that on Jean Borotra's much disputed shot against Wilmer Allison the ball was really out, and that the linesman's failure to call it so cost the American player the match.

But he refuses to string along with the conjecture of the dopesters that if the proper ruling had been made on Borotra's shot, the United States would have won the Davis Cup, three matches to two, inasmuch as in the second singles match on the final day Ellsworth Vines defeated the French ace, Henri Cochet.

"IT WOULD HAVE meant that Allison beat Borotra, all right, but it wouldn't have meant that we won the cup," said the touring tennis enthusiast. "If Allison had won, it would have been up to Cochet to beat Vines, and in a crisis Cochet is superb.

C. V. Whitney

"As it was, it didn't matter whether Cochet won or not, and the match was simply an exhibition, France having already won three matches to clinch the cup. I don't see why anybody cares whether the ball was in or out. The Davis Cup would still be in France, because Cochet would have beaten Vines."

A HORSE RACE closely resembling a championship is on the schedule for this afternoon, when the Whitney Memorial at Saratoga will bring together at a mile and a quarter the outstanding two speeders of the year—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise and M. L. Schwartz's Gusto. Equipoise is king of the handicap division, and in nine races this year was beaten only by the inconsistent Plucky Play, which had the proverbial feather on his back while the Whitney horse carried the crushing impost of 134 pounds. Gusto, a son of Man o' War, won both the American Derby and the American Classic in Chicago last month, defeating Faireno and Top Flight among others in the Classic and putting himself in line for the 3-year-old title. One of the most interesting tests of speed and other racing qualities in a long time is promised when the two greats of 1932 measure strides. There appears to be a slight edge in favor of Equipoise, though he must carry 126 pounds to Gusto's 117.

GOLDEN BEARS FAVORED TO BEAT FIELD

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The United States naval forces, already leading by a slight margin on points over 11 other nations, figured to clinch the main honors of the Olympic regatta today with two decisive broadsides in three of the final rowing engagements.

At least 35,000 spectators were expected to crowd the stands and shores of the Olympic lagoon from start to finish of the 2,000-meter straightaway for the climax event, in which University of California's unbeaten crew rows the best boatloads of Great Britain, Canada and Italy for the eight-oared championship of the world.

The Californians, driven hard in workouts since they whipped Canada to qualify for the finals, apparently are close to the peak they attained in the final American tryouts, after sweeping the college seas. But they figured to need plenty of speed and stamina to meet Italy's greatest challenge for the international honors since 1924.

ITALIANS STRONG

The Italians featured the trials by outrowing the Cambridge University eight from England. Their time was slightly faster than the Americans in the trials but the most impressive part of their performance was the dash with which they finished. As a result they displaced Canada as the outstanding choice to extend the United States.

Meanwhile the world championship sculling crown rests securely in the possession of Australia's renowned oarsmen, Henry Robert Pearce, who yesterday stood off the spirited closing challenge of Bill Miller, American champion, to win by three-quarters of a length in the single sculls final.

The other two finalists, Guillermo Douglas, of Uruguay, and Leslie Southwood, Great Britain, were distanced.

In three other finals, contested yesterday, the United States shared honors with Germany and Great Britain.

U. S. PAIR WINS

The American pair-oared combination of Charley Kiefer and Joe Schauers, with Ed Jennings, coxswain, from the Penn A. C., came through with a fine performance to beat Poland by a length and a half in 8:25 1-5. France was third and Brazil fourth.

The German four, with coxswain, came from behind with a rush to beat Italy in the last few strokes.

The British pair-oared boat, manned by Hugh Edwards and Lewis Clive, without coxswain, triumphed over New Zealand by a scant length in 8 minutes flat. Poland was third and Holland fourth.

The United States picked up 15 points for the day and took the lead. Poland and Great Britain collected 13 each, Germany and Australia 10 each, New Zealand 8 and Italy 5.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY:—800 TIMES UNDER FIRE—Brigadier General Joseph Wheeler (1836-1906) resigned a commission in the U. S. Army to join the Confederacy, where he was successively promoted to the rank of Colonel, Brigadier, Cavalry Commander of Bragg's Army, Major-General and Lieutenant-General. He was very conspicious as a raider in the Civil War, having the destruction of more than $3,000,000 of U. S. property to his "credit." He led the advance in every forward movement of his forces, and always covered the rear in a retreat. For a long time he fought almost daily, dismounting his force for battle when necessary. Battles connected with his name are Chickamauga, Ringgold Gap, Macon, Augusta, Savannah, Johnsonville, Bentonville and numerous others. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, Gen. Wheeler went to Cuba as Major-General of Volunteers in command of a cavalry division, adding the battles of Las Guasimas and San Juan to his past laurels. Altogether Fighting Joe Wheeler commanded in more than 200 battles and was under fire 800 times. He has a long and enviable record as Congressman and was a U. S. Brigadier-General, retired, when he died.

TOMORROW—MIDLAND'S EQUILIBRIUM MAN

CUBS MAY ASK EXPLANATION

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Reports current here today indicated that Commissioner K. M. Landis would be asked to explain the reasons for his hurried trip to Pittsburgh on Thursday and the resultant reports that members of the Chicago Cubs were being investigated for alleged betting on the horses.

Landis, on his return here yesterday, had nothing to say when interviewed by newspapermen. It was reported, however, that certain men financially interested in the Cubs would demand an explanaation of the commissioner's attitude if one was not voluntarily forthcoming within a reasonable length of time.

ALL BET—HORNSBY

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Rogers Hornsby, who was removed as manager of the Chicago Cubs in the National League, said yesterday that if Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis started banishing players or managers because they bet on race horses, he would disrupt the entire league.

"There isn't a club in the circuit that hasn't got players who bet, or have bet, on races," said Hornsby, commenting on reports that Judge Landis was conducting an investigation of charges that members of the Cubs were playing the horses too freely.

Hornsby asserted emphatically that betting had nothing to do with his being replaced as manager of the Cubs.

HEMSLEY BAN LIFTED

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Chicago Cubs have lifted the indefinite suspension on Catcher Roll. Hemsley. Hemsley was sent home from Philadelphia for breaking training rules. He will rejoin the Cubs in St. Louis.

B. WARMCASTLE GOLF VICTOR

Barbara Warmcastle, sensational young Pittsburgh Field Club golfer, added to her golfing laurels yesterday by leading the field in the annual Edgewood Country Cluo invitation tournament by a margin of two strokes. She carded an 84, with Betty Abernathy, of Oakmont, finishing in second place with an 86. Mary Kuhn, also of the Field Club, was third with 89 and Mrs Chester Lehmann, of Westmoreland, Mrs. F. M. Sloan, of Edgewood, and Emilie Roseburgh, of Oakmont, tied for fourth with 91s

Miss Warmcastle's five-stroke handicap also gave her the low net prize, a 79. Mrs. Sloan and Miss Abernathy tied for second honors with 81s.

In the second division, Mrs. W. J. Curley, of the Field Club, scored a low gross of 98 to win and tied with Mrs. W. B. Morris, of the home club, for low net with 80. Mrs. C. E. Armstrong's gross 105 topped the field in the third division and her handicap enabled her to tie with Margaret Byrnes, another Field Club player, for the low net award with 77.

Jack Sheedy scored a deuce on the No. 18 hole at Stanton Heights yesterday to defeat L. H. Pippins by a stroke in a first-round match of the annual Stanton Heights championship tourney. Pippins scored an eagle on the same hole. It marked the first time in the history of the course that such an occurrence had taken place.

SMITH BEATS CATALINE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Jimmy Smith, 124, of Huntington, took a decision from Johnny Catalino, 126½, of Charleston, in a 10-round main go here last night. In the two eight-rounders, Benny McArthur, 143½, of Fairmont, and K. O. Terry, 137, of Portsmouth, O., fought to a draw and Howard Smith, 135, of Huntington, outpointed Billy McCale, 143, of Fairmont.

ANSWER TO QUERY

All-America Track Team

The 1932 all-America track and field team, selected by the All-America Board of Track and Field, will be published exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

A district star is among those honored.

Frank Shea, Pitt coach, is a member of the board.

Read this exclusive feature. It tells about the stars who gained honors for the United States in the Olympic games just concluded, the Tolans, Metcalfes, et al.

'HOUND RACING RETURNS HERE

Dog-racing is to be revived at the Bridgeville track beginning next Monday night, it was announced today. The same organization which ran previous meetings there will be the sponsor, with Art Rooney, local sportsman, as an associate.

Workmen are putting the finishing touches on revamping the track and the dogs are on the scene. Schooling races will be held Monday night and a full program of events listed for the following night.

Three organizations will benefit from the proceeds of the races. They are American Legion Post No. 54, of Bridgeville; the Bridgeville Relief and Welfare Association, and the South Fayette Township Relief Committee.

The dogs at the track have been shipped in from Wheeling, where a 24-day meeting has just been concluded.

LOCAL PRINTERS MEET DEFEAT

ST. PAUL, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Nine teams remained in the running for the Union Printers' International Baseball championship as the tournament entered the third round today.

Games yesterday saw the elimination of Indianapolis and Cleveland, each with two losses, and the defeat of the defending champion, Washington, by the Twin Cities nine. The latter teams drew a bye today to enter the fourth round.

Baltimore, which yesterday eliminated Indianapolis, in the first extra inning game will meet Detroit; Cincinnati, victor over Chicago in the latter teams first start, plays New York; Washington tangles with Pittsburgh and St. Louis Chicago.

In other games yesterday, St. Louis eliminated Cleveland and New York swamped Pittsburgh.

New York broke out in a scoring rash in the first inning, counting five runs. They added two more in the sixth, five in the seventh and three in the eighth. The Pittsburgh hitters, who functioned so properly in defeating Baltimore in their first game of the tourney on Thursday, were limited to two safe blows by Pitcher Bairon, of New York. The score:

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Cincinnati Reds are in town for a single combat with Our Pirates, and who do you think was sent ahead of the barnstorming club to be ready for the Pittsburgh hitters? Nobody but that six-foot-five gent from Ol' Virginny, Eppa Jeppa Rixey, who flips the ball with his let hand and plays a durn good game of golf right handed.

Eppa Jeppa Rixey, the tall country boy who made good in the city, has but two verdicts to show for his efforts of the summer, but in pondering the question, Manager Dan Howley recalled that the Buccos were Eppa Jeppa's victims on both occasions. Rixey didn't do so good the last time he took a shot at the Pirates, but Howley must think he's a pretty good bet. Bill Swift is due to work for the Pirates. The home team is one-half a game below the first-place Cubs, who take on the Cardinals today.

FACE DODGERS NEXT

The Buccos are due for another rest day tomorrow but they will be up and about early Monday to repel the invasions of the eastern clubs. The fast-going Dodgers will head the parade of Seaboard clubs to the Oakland orchard.

Manager Gibson and his fighters are hoping for better success in the immediate future. The bad fortune they encountered in the scrap with the Cubs Thursday apparently was a sample of the breaks which have been pursuing them for two weeks. Gus Suhr, for example, in nine times out of 10, would make a triple of his long smash to center on which he was thrown out in the crucial contest. Vaughan followed with a double, but the damage had been done.

CHILLYSAUCE

Carleton Molesworth, one of the Pirate scouts, came back to the home office yesterday after a long journey in quest of embryo stars. While Moley's mission has some beneficial points, he was saddened over the scarcity of future greats.

The Pittsburgh sleuth honeycombed the Southern Association and he says there is not a big-league infielder in the hole circuit.

The best catcher Moley studied on the whole trip was Johnny Gooch, former Pirate star, who is doing great work behind the bat for Nashville. Gooch would help a lot of major teams at present, the scout believes.

Al Mamaux, once a Pirate slab ace, who pilots the Newark club of the International League, advised Molesworth that Outfielder Woodie Jensen, Bucco farmhand, is the most popular player in the history of baseball in Newark.

Newark is leading the Class AA circuit by a big margin and probably will win the flag. Jensen's all-around play is a big factor in the Bears' drive. He is sure to be recalled by the Pirates.

Ted Yarosz Wins Over Eddie Wolfe

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Teddy Yarosz, of Pittsburgh, chalked up his fifty-fifth consecutive ring victory last night by pounding out a 10-round decision over Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, Tenn., in the State Fair Grounds arena.

Wolfe started strong and finished the same way, but Yarosz got underway in the third and thereafter won nearly every round but the tenth.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—A baseball expert is useless for doping out that National League race. You need to be a race track connoisseur because the whole league is just a set of dark horses.

Nick Altrock

And if the scramble in the National loop is going to keep on being as close as it is now, they'll need a recount to find out the pennant winner.

In mid-August, when the three leading teams have a crack at the flag, you've got a race. When the first four clubs are fighting it out, you've got a battle royal. But, when an outfit doesn't even have to be in the first division to be a pennant contender, the blooming league is just a squirrel cage.

U. S. Threat Eased In Canuck Amateur

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Canadian amateur golf championship became an all-Canadian affair yesterday when Will Gunn, Jr., of Wallingford, Pa., last of the United States challengers, was eliminated in a 36-hole semi-final match.

Unable to hit the stride that marked his early triumps, Gunn, brother of Watts Gunn, former Walker Cup player, fell before the sub-par golf of Gordon Taylor, 23-year-old Montreal player. The score was 12 and 10.

Olympic Briefs

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Approximately 20,000 spectators saw the United States conquer Canada, 7 to 4, yesterday in the deciding contest in a three-game lacrosse exhibition series of the 1932 Olympic games.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—By a margin of only two points France displaced Holland as official winner of the Monotype championship of the Olympic games yachting races by decision on a protest, and was awarded the title. A judge's decision taking eight points from the French boat's total was reversed on appeal to the Olympic protest committee, which decided the championship.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—John R. Huffman, of the United States fencing team, fought his way into the company of the traditional saber victors, the Hungarians, in yesterday's semi-finals of the individual saber competition of the Olympic games. Qualifying among the 10 men who will contest for the championship today, Huffman and Attila Petschauer and Andrew Kabos, of Hungary, led the pool in which they met, each winning six bouts out of eight.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Germany kept in the battle for the Olympic water polo title here yesterday afternoon by outmaneuvering Japan in a 10-0 battle, the issue of which was never in doubt. Defense play by the Teutons was so well executed the losers were never able to get a shot at the goal in the first half.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Maj. Renzo Morigi, an officer in the Fascist militia of Italy, won the Olympic pistol shooting title yesterday, firing a shot into each of six life-sized images within the two seconds allotted in the final test. Lieut. Heinrich Max, of Germany, placed second, scoring four hits in two seconds, while Lieut. Matteucci, of Italy, was third, with three hits. L. E. Roberts, last survivor of United States' trio of shooters was eliminated when he missed one of the six targets in the four-second bracket.

KINDER KEEPS TITLE

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Johnny Kinder, 25-year-old assistant professional at the Green Brook Country Club, yesterday retained the New Jersey open golf championship, which he first won last year at Crestmont. His 72-hole total was 293, made up of rounds of 73-71-72-77.

SEAL HARRIS OUTMAULED BY DE KUH

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

The fans who wanted a "typical" heavyweight boxing match got it at Greenlee Field last night, when Arthur DeKuh, Italian giant, of New York, standing 6 feet 4 inches north of the canvas, and scaling 229 pounds, bested Seal Harris, Chicago Negro, almost as tall and weighing 226, in 10 rounds of holding and body slamming such as you won't see again until the next strike on the docks.

Round after round it was the same, with virtually all of the work being done at close quarters and DeKuh getting the better one-arm grips and chugging in his blows with the free fist oftener and harder than the Seal. It was the most earnest thing you'd ever want to look at, but at the same time so monotonous and such a slow motion picture that some of the fans didn't quite comprehend the motif and actually booed for action, while others awoke in time to cheer when the card indicating the rounds showed that, finally, at last, and in truth, the tenth and concluding session was coming up.

REFEREE IS HERO

DeKuh won five of the rounds, with two even. But he wasn't impressive except as a powerful gent who probably was a good wrestler in his time. Harris' blows made little or no impression upon him, while he slowed down the Seal no end with his own body attack. Arthur suffered a cut on his lower lip in the second round, but his seconds finally got the flow of blood stemmed and he didn't seem to mind the injury.

The real winner to the fans was the referee, Al Grayber, no midget himself, but quite puny compared with the two behemoths he had to separate and grapple with throughout the battle. He earned a year's salary the way he worked, and the only reason he didn't get socked breaking up the clinches is that DeKuh was a day late getting in for the fight, in the first place, and wasn't in any hurry to get to the next stop, in the second place. A more deliberate and sleepy-looking fighter never has appeared here. But Arthur won, so what do you want from him?

As for Harris he probably would have looked better against an opponent who didn't put on the bunny-hug act and go to work laying bricks in clinch after clinch. Harris was the more active of the two, but DeKuh didn't give him much chance to fight out in the open.

WILSON BEATS GREEN

The best bout of the night was the eight-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, while the fans shivered in the chilly breezes. In it, Jack Wilson, of the North Side, 157, tamed Anson Green, hard-hitting Negro, of Homestead, 154, handily outboxing his man over the entire route, and also outslugging him on occasions. Green was able to score with his dangerous right only a few times, and Wilson took the smacks and kept going. It was a nice fight that Jack turned in after quite a layoff.

Eddie Zivic, of Lawrenceville, brother of Jack and Pete and Fritzie and Joe Zivic, and also related to other Zivics, showed a lot of class and punch and confidence in trimming Johnny Durso, of Oakland, in the second bout. He floored his man for nine in the fourth round and won from bell to bell in every heat. It was only Eddie's third pro fight, and he gives promise of going somewhere. He has picked up some of Jack Zivic's cockiness in his aggressiveness that has made for noticeable improvement.

Bobby Rowe, of the East End, beat Sammy Paris, of the Hill, in the opener, a hard-fought bout.

The one night postponement of the show, caused by DeKuh's refusal to come here until transportation money was advanced him, didn't help the gate. The crowd was small.

Between Rounds

Sammy Slaughter, the Negro middleweight, of Terre Haute, Ind., who has knocked out Paul Pirrone and Angel Chivelle in his last two starts, is managed by Bud Taylor, former bantamweight star. He is one of the hardest hitters in the game.

Amateur boxing will be revived at Tarentum next Tuesday night after a lull of a decade, when the Drum and Bugle Corps of Tarentum Post No. 85, American Legion, stages a card of bouts at the Riverview Memorial Park athletic grounds.

Charley Baxter and Battling Gizzy wind up their hard training today for their local lightweight title match at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night. Incidentally, the prices for this show will be $1 and $2. There will be no 75-cent seats.

Dan Billick, bantamweight, and Joe Hughes, welterweight, of Duquesne, want bouts.

Johnny Hazel, local lightweight, who has had only two professional bouts, finds the men in his class are avoiding him. Cuddy DeMarco is Hazel's manager and wants some bouts for him.

Fight Results

At Greenlee Field—Arthur DeKuh defeated Seal Harris, 10 rounds; Jack Wilson defeated Anson Green, 8 rounds; Eddie Zivic defeated Johnny Durso, 6 rounds; Bobby Rowe defeated Sammy Paris, 6 rounds.

Blondie Tries to Bring Larry Belmont Back To Lurline

CHAPTER XVIII.

"I'm boring you . . ." said Blondie, glancing at her watch.

"No—you could never bore me . . . situations bore me, though. I'm getting to distrust everyone and everything—I think it must be age . . ."

"You look very well!"

"So do you . . . it's not fair for one person to have so much charm—what does it feel like to be a great success?"

"Success!"

"Miss McClune wears this—she smokes that . . . I'm always reading about you."

"You're laughing at me, really!"

"You wouldn't have me cry over you, would you?"

"You couldn't cry if you tried—over anyone!"

"You mean I'm not sincere? . . . I was sincere with you . . ." Larry paused for an answer, but Blondie was silent. ". . . and you know it . . ." he added.

"And now?"

"Well—now is another day, isn't it?"

"Yes, funny, isn't it?"

"Very funny—that's why I laugh . . ." and the room echoed with his mocking laughter.

"She'll be a lucky woman—who really gets you seriously."

"The lady who did get me seriously—did turn out to be very lucky . . ." and Larry looked around the luxurious room again.

"And who was that?"

"Well, if this place isn't a palace of luck in a circus, I guess I don't know what it is—walk up, boys and girls, and take your chances for the big life—whoopee!"

DOOR BELL RINGS

Blondie was trembling now as she watched Larry and listened to his bitter tirade against her. Oh, she thought, if she could only put her arms around him and beg him to take her out of all this.

They were interrupted by the ringing of the door bell.

"Who is it?" asked Larry.

"Lurline."

"Why?" asked Larry, seriously

"Wait!"

"No—why?"

"Please — for me," pleaded Blondie.

"No," insisted Larry, but Lurline swept into the room.

"Hello, Larry," she said, surprised.

"Hello," replied Larry, coldly.

"Hello, Lurline," greeted Blondie.

"Hello.—it's like old home week," said Lurline.

"Sit down, Lurline—Larry has to hurry."

"Now that I'm here — it's a wonder he doesn't dive right through the window . . ."

"I'm saving that until the market goes right down."

"Tea, Lurline—or a drink?"

"What do you think?"

"Champagne," Blondie said, turning to the butler.

"When I received your message to 'come at once' I was afraid you were sick—what's it all about?"

BLONDIE BLAMES SELF

"I've been worried," said Blondie.

"You look it," sarcastically from Lurline, as she glanced around the room.

"I feel that I was the cause of you and Larry breaking up . . .", Blondie said, seriously.

"Well—" Lurline started to interrupt.

"This is the first time I've spoken to either of you since that night on the yacht . . . and I wondered if I couldn't be the means of bringing you together again . . . You know you care for Larry, Lurline, and I'm sure Larry cares for you . . ."

Larry rose and started to walk away. But Lurline was affected by what Blondie had said.

"I don't know what I ever did to Larry to make him change," Lurline said simply.

"What was it, Larry?" asked Blondie.

"What would you like me to say?" Larry retorted.

"I'd like you to say that you'll make up with Lurline."

"Sorry—we always understood each other perfectly."

"Until you walked out, we did! said Lurline.

"I feel that I . . .," Blondie started again, but Larry cut her short.

NOT REAL LOVE

"We all make mistakes—I thought it was fun when it started, but I began to find out how sordid and empty this sort of thing is."

"Thank you very much," said Lurline, grandly, more hurt than she cared to admit.

"I'm not trying to be unkind . . . but don't you realize it's just as bad for the man as the woman? She's not the only one who loses her self-respect . . . he does, too, and there was no real love in it—you know that!"

"How do you know, Larry?" said Lurline, biting her lip.

"You never really loved me!" Larry challenged. Blondie watched as Lurline turned away from his gaze.

"That's true, Larry . . ." Lurline admitted, facing him again.

"Did I ever say I loved you?"

"No! . . . You were honest—I'll say that!"

"And I've always been honest—I may be a bum in a lot of ways, but I'm honest . . ."

Synopsis

Blondie McClune and Lottie Callahan, friends since childhood, work in the same store. After work one evening, Lottie says she has a date and asks Blondie to join her. Blondie disapproves. Two men wait for them outside the building. When one becomes too familiar with her, Blondie slaps his face and goes home alone, to the poor section of the city. Later the two girls argue about the date and it ends in a rough and tumble fight. Blondie's dress is torn and she decides to get a new one. Looking for some money she had saved, she discovers that somebody has taken it. She greets her ailing dad when he arrives home and learns that he has lost his job. Lottie leaves home in quest of a career. After a few months, under the name of Lurline Cavendish, she becomes the newest sensation of the Follies. She visits the McClunes, but is anxious to get away from the place she once called her home. Blondie is self-conscious when she meets Larry Belmont, a young broker. Lurline becomes angry with her for accepting a theater invitation from Larry. Blondie, through Larry's influence, is given a part in the Follies. Larry quarrels with Lurline when she objects to Blondie accompaning them on party. Blondie flees from home after her father criticizes Larry. She goes to Lurline, who tells her about Larry. The next day Larry tells Lurline he is through with her. Blondie is an instant hit in the Follies.

Now Go On

"You never really loved me," Larry challenged. Blondie watched them closely.

Suddenly he turned to Blondie, and his voice shook with feeling: "And I was honest with you—when I told you—" Larry stopped. "What does it matter now?—it's too late!" he added, dejectedly.

VOICE BREAKS

"You'll have to marry and settle down some day!" Blondie exclaimed quickly.

"To whom?" asked Lurline, sharply.

"That's a long story — if I treated you badly, I'm sorry—very sorry . . . and thanks, little Blondie, for a sweet thought. I've always known you were fine—fine . . . Goodbye, kids!"

"Good luck, mister . . ." Blondie said, her voice breaking under the strain.

"Mister yourself!" came back Larry, laughingly.

Blondie followed him to the door. It seemed as though the weight of the world was resting on her shoulders, and a strange, insistent pain was tugging at her heart.

With his hand on the door Larry turned, and said:

"Everyone, some time in his life, has to turn around and do the right thing. I want to be married and have a home . . . and children. The big gay life isn't so much . . . really! It's pretty empty at times . . . Well, so long . . ." and he was gone.

Blondie stared blankly at the door for a minute, then threw back her shoulders, put her chin in the air, and entered the drawing room.

Lurline was pouring champagne when Blondie walked over to her.

"Want some?" asked Lurline, quietly.

"Sure!"

Silently they raised their glasses to each other and drank.

"Heigh! . . . Heigh!" called Blondie, putting down her glass. "Got a mirror?" asked Lurline. "My tears have gone black!"

"In here . . ." and Blondie led her into a bedroom that a princess would envy.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Lee Chow Prepares to Identify Prisoners

Harry Underwood stood in the door when Lillian opened it, and his eyes ran over me quickly, appraising my changed costume.

"All set?" he asked us, and Lillian nodded.

"Ready for anything," she said.

"Then come along. We need you, Lady Fair."

Wondering, I followed him with Lillian into the kitchen, giving a startled gasp just inside the doorway, at the sight of the two bound Chinese, who had been covered from neck to feet in sheets, and had their heads bound in towels.

"Taking no chances on contagion," Harry Underwood said in a low voice, and then my father's hands were on my shoulders, and his voice was demanding:

"Tell me, darling, you are all right, that fiend did not hurt you?"

"Not a bit," I fibbed, for my bruised elbow still reminded me of the terrifying onslaught of one of those bound figures.

"Then listen to Hugh. We need you, dearest."

But Hugh spoke first to Dicky, who came into the room just after me.

"What does Mrs. Bickett say?"

"That it's all right to bring Madge in now, and the men afterward."

"Then we'll get to work at once," Hugh Grantland decided. "Mrs. Bickett tells me"—he turned to me deferentially—"that you are the only person to whom the wounded Chinese will pay any attention, and that he believes everything you say."

LEE CHOW WAITS

I hoped that my cheeks were not as flaming as they felt, and I stole an apprehensive glance at Dicky.

Perhaps Hugh had not been told why the old Chinese would receive information from no one save me, but I knew that the words of the old chap, "plitty lady belong Lee Chow's boss man," were fresh in my husband's memory.

His face was non-committal, however, and I mustered up courage to look at Hugh.

"Please go to the sick room and tell him Lee Chow is here. Then Lee Chow will talk to him.

"I am to go now?"

"If you please."

Lee Chow came to my side and together we left the kitchen and went down the hall to the library, where lay the wounded Chinese. Lee Chow stepped back as we came to the door.

"I will wait here until you call me," he said, and I tapped softly upon the door. Katherine opened it and beckoned me inside.

"It's all right," she said. "I've told him you were coming."

I crossed to the bed and looked down upon the still wan face of the wounded Chinese. His black eyes stared up at me unwinkingly.

"Plitty lady have news," he said surprisingly.

"Yes." I went straight to the point. "Lee Chow is here."

CHINESE QUESTIONED

Again that unwinking, silent stare. Finally he spoke in his usual high-pitched singing voice:

"He want see me?"

"Yes. He is waiting just outside the door."

Across his immobile face flitted an expression of something like horror that his master should be waiting anywhere upon his convenience. I hastened to put a query.

"Can you see him now? Shall I bring him in?"

"Yes, quick," he answered, and I turned away. Katherine, who had heard the colloquy, was already at the door, and the next moment Lee Chow, with infinite compassion in his eyes, was bending over the bed.

I quickly went to Katherine at the other end of the room, and we waited while Lee Chow's quick questions and the man's slower replies went on. Finally Lee Chow straightened himself from his stooping posture and came over to us.

"I am very anxious," he said to Katherine, in the admirable English speech that is his, "to have those men in the kitchen brought in here immediately. I have prepared him as well as I could for their appearance—but—will you look at him, please, and tell me if you consider him able to go through the ordeal?"

"He will be all right," she said, "but do not have them stay any longer than is absolutely necessary."

"I promise you that," Lee Chow said gravely, as he went out of the room.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Sixteen Warner theaters today in the Pittsburgh area, where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Clubs meet on Saturday, were filled to overflowing with boys and girls when the Grand Jesters of the various chapters called the meeting to order.

At each of the theaters, special games and contests were held for the entertainment and enjoyment of the members with prizes for those who competed and showed the most skill. Stage shows were presented at many of the theaters. The talent appearing in these stage shows were recruited from among the members.

Harry Thomas, manager of the Schenley Theater, where the meeting was called to order at 1 o'clock, spent three or four worrysome days this week wondering where he could get an act to take the place of his Komic Club Orchestra which usually entertains at the Saturday meetings. All this week the orchestra has been playing at Motor Square Garden. However, the boys will finish their engagement tonight and will be back at the Komic Club meeting next Saturday. To take their place Manager Thomas arranged for the banjo trio and the Texas Rangers to fill the gap caused by the orchestra being away.

CONTEST SCHEDULED

Earl Roeser, of the Camera-phone, had a watermellon and ice-cream eating contest for the members, and John Harris sent his pet bear-cub out to amuse the youngsters. This is the bear that Frank Buck captured and presented to Mr. Harris who in turn is going to present him to the Highland Park Zoo where all the club members and their friends will be able to see and enjoy his antics at any time.

The members of the Arsenal Chapter had a better chance to become acquainted with Eddie Johns, the new manager. Mr. Johns was transferred to the Arsenal last week and his first Komic Club meeting was held last Saturday. He said yesterday:

"I'll know most of the youngsters in a couple of weeks and when I find out what kind of special entertainment and games they would like to participate in I'll see that they have a good time each and every meeting."

INSPECT PLANT

One of his first acts as manager of the Arsenal was to arrange for the members to be the guests at Heinz's Tuesday. All the members will meet at the theater and go to the Heinz plant in a group, and they will be taken through the plant. And boys and girls of the Arsenal chapter, here's a little inside information for you. After you have been taken through the plant, you'll get free "eats." Now don't tell anyone, because it's a secret.

The entertainment at the Arsenal today was furnished by the following members:

Laura Jacobs, Josephine Lang, Josephine Baran, Bernardine Gressler, Steve DeLost and Russell Neggi.

The members of the Manor chapter enjoyed the stage show presented last week by the "Raleigh Street Handy Helpers," that Manager Joe Blowitz is presenting again today by popular request. The cast includes Hope Coleman, Marjorie Colman, Judson Richman, Marian Richman, Joan Richman, Buddy Braun, Marjorie Braun, Grace Carey, Martin Cohen and Ruth Louman. The play, entitled "Gayeties of 1933," was directed by Millie Cohen and Corrine Lenchner.

I'VE traveled the world around," muses the Epicure, "and have tasted foods in many lands. One lesson I have learned. If one constantly seeks perfection, ultimately it is attained... as witness the marvelous cuisine at The WARWICK in New York." Add to that the spacious comfort... the luxurious accommodations... the perfect service... the fashionable, congenial atmosphere... and you will begin to understand the appeal of The WARWICK. New Charges Make Investigation of Utilities Inescapable—Comment on Local News.

Gov. Pinchot's charge that James S. Benn made bank deposits totaling $650,000 during his 10 years of service on the Public Service Commission adds force to the demand that the Senate investigate the relationship between members of the commission and the public utilities companies. If there was bribery, let the givers as well as the takers be brought to book.

There is a well-defined belief that certain public utilities companies corrupted members of the Public Service Commission and through the support thus obtained were able to inflict unreasonably high rates on the people of Pennsylvania. It is important, therefore, not only that bribery be uncovered, but that an inquiry be made into the fairness of the bribe-givers' rates.

However willing the Senate may have been to defy public opinion before the latest charges were made by Gov. Pinchot, it hardly will be brazen enough to continue to shirk an investigation. An inquiry now is inescapable. But the people will have to be on guard to see that it is a thorough inquiry and a sincere one. A keen and competent attorney should be employed for the work.

Senator Frank J. Harris' resolution calling for an investigation of the public utilities may be ignored, according to Harrisburg dispatches, and another resolution sponsored by some henchman of the State Republican organization passed in its stead. It is suggested that the purpose of this move might be to keep Harris out of the chairmanship of the investigating committee. But he is the very kind of man, because of his independence, who should pilot the inquiry.

The Senate will not have done its duty in the public utilities matter if it orders an investigation and then stops. If the people are to get fair utilities rates it is important that good men shall be placed on the Public Service Commission to replace those who have resigned. Gov. Pinchot has named good men and their appointments should be confirmed without further delay.

If the Senate deserves censure for its hesitation in the public utilities business, the House, too, must be reprimanded for its failure to pass any kind of legislation that would provide the $12,000,000 for unemployment relief authorized by the Talbot bill. The Legislature has been in special session for seven weeks, and is still shamefully procrastinating.

The League for Social Justice set a good example by its "town meeting" at West Park Thursday night to discuss the Legislature's failure to enact relief legislation. If the people were to meet oftener and express their views more openly the lawmakers would be more receptive to public opinion. The West Park gathering's approval of a state income tax for relief purposes was significant.

While the city has been far from as efficient as it might have been in handling the unemployment problem a crisis was successfully passed this week and, after a few days of half-rations, the customary relief was again provided for the dependent families. It is to be hoped that the next crisis will be foreseen sufficiently in advance to prevent its arrival.

John S. Herron, president of City Council, says the city will save about $100,000 this year in its bill for the removal of garbage and rubbish because people are throwing less food into the garbage can than formerly. A long-term contract for garbage disposal, which would encourage competitive bidding, would make it possible to save money every year.

*Now that the legality of the County Poor Di*rectors' proposed bond issue has been upheld, the Board should hesitate no longer about issuing it. There is no certainty that the Legislature will act. Even if it does, the destitute of the county will not be sure of relief unless the Poor Board supplements state relief. The bond issue is the best plan that has been offered.

Pittsburgh's street car men are to be congratulated on voting in favor of a five-day week. Their decision means that 300 men on the extra list will get regular employment and that 400 other extra men will receive higher wages than they would otherwise have received. Of course the five-day week means lower wages for some of the regular men, but the sacrifice means the greatest good for the greatest number.

In sorry contrast with the spirit shown by the street car men is the obstinacy responsible for the prolongation of the strike on the new federal building. It has been anomalous that hundreds of men should be kept out of employment for weeks by a strike while thousands of others were desperately seeking any kind of jobs they could get.

Strikes of workmen employed in the construction of large buildings have been of frequent occurrence in Pittsburgh over a period of years. It is too bad that the causes of friction cannot be anticipated and guarded against. It would seem as though every possible ground for dispute could be known in advance by this time.

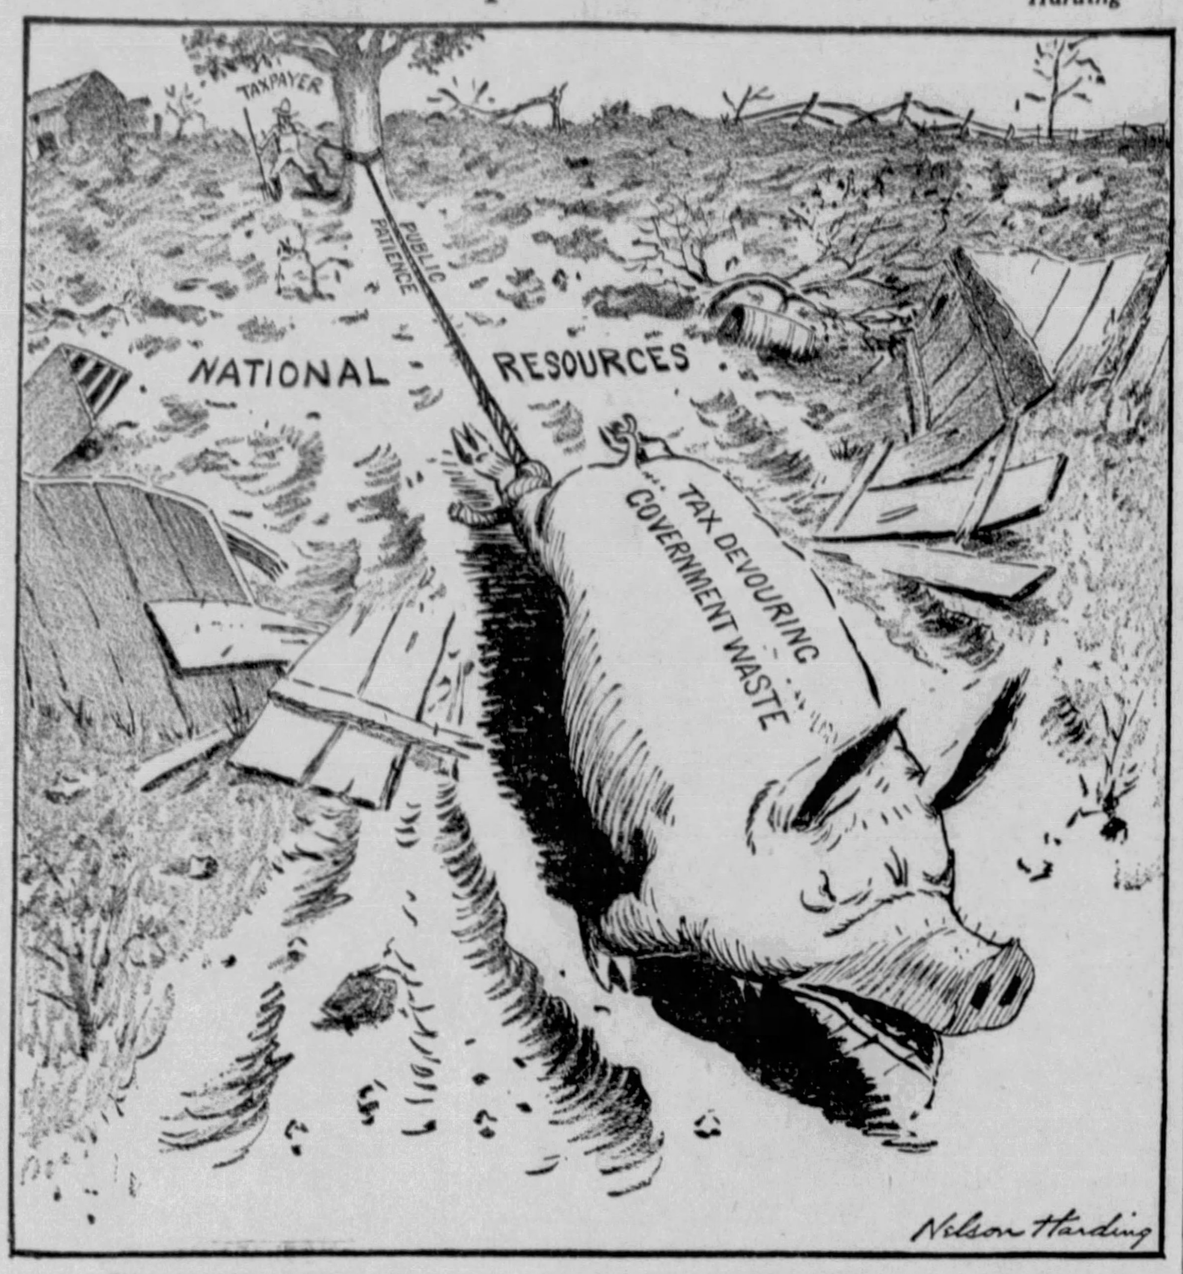
Now that President Hoover has formally accepted the Republican nomination and presented his views on the issues the campaign may be considered as being in full swing. Straw votes are interesting. The Sun-Telegraph will publish in tomorrow's issue the first returns in a careful, nation-wide presidential poll that it is conducting in co-operation with the other Hearst papers.

Pictures of the Olympic Games at Los Angeles feature the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. On the "Remember?" page some stirring war photographs are reproduced in honor of the American Legion convention meeting here next week. There is a half page of pictures of interesting babies. Bathing beauties and garden scenes are also pictured.

William Penn was not the peace-loving Quaker of tranquil life most people think, but was a duelist, often went to jail, and was continually in trouble with both debtors and creditors, according to a writer in the American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Every Pennsylvanian should read this article.

At the End of Its Rope

By Nelson Harding



This animal has rooted up
And eaten all within its scope,
And though it reaches out for more,
There is a limit to its rope.

Enough destruction has been wrought
To rouse the farmer in alarm,
And he must promptly shorten rope,
Or see the hog destroy his farm!

Marry-Go-Round

Midsummer Lovers

It is almost as hard for some men to get along with only one summer romance a season as it would be for a woman to get along with only one beach ensemble.

* * *

The girl with plenty of sex appeal can get almost any man on her list, perhaps, but it takes a lot of emotional appeal plus some financial appeal to get his name on the dotted line of a marriage certificate these days.

Stirring brings everything to the surface, and this big financial stir-up is going to enable us to shake off all the lightweights, four-flushers, bounders, false alarms and tinhorn sports, which have encumbered society for the last decade and made life such a bore for the rest of us.

* * *

A man's love may survive a red hot quarrel, but what takes all the heart and enthusiasm out of him is a woman's determination to go back, dig it up and warm it over every few days.

* * *

Life, the average man feels, would be so much simpler and sweeter, if one woman would only "be reasonable" about the OTHER woman.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to make a woman believe that he loves her — and after that, it is no trouble at all for her to persuade that she loves HIM.

* * *

A man loves a woman only so long as he finds her lovable—or until he finds some other woman more lovable. But a woman is supposed to go on automatically loving her husband, until the judge tells her she can stop.

* * *

Heat makes everything expand—even the masculine heart. That's why it can always accommodate two or three girls at a time, in the midsummer moonlight season.

All that a Tired Married Man need do to satisfy his wife's soul-hunger these days, is to turn on the radio and get a crooner. Oh, these modern conveniences!

Isn't It So?

Hope is the poor man's bread.

When the hostess is handsome, the wine is good.

Better a good head than a hundred strong hands.

When I would solace myself with a fool I reflect upon myself—and there I have him.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Purely personal piffle: I care nothing for Ethel Merman's singing, but like to watch her point her fingers in the air. Before my marriage, I pawned a gold watch 32 times. Somehow, I've gotten around to the Algonquin at lunch time. I'm fascinated prowling around 5 and 10 cent stores.

I used to rush by freshly painted buildings for fear of catching "painter's colic." I like to halloo in open spaces. In stepping into a room to meet David Belasco, one time, I tripped to the floor, which is making an entrance.

My latest movie crush is for Karen Morley. Coffee, to me, is just something to quench the thirst. I'd as soon have hot water. I've worn spats the year around for 23 years. Nearly everybody in my home town knows me as "Dunk," a nickname by Charlie Varney, boyhood playmate.

My Boston often sleeps, sitting on his haunches, in the corner with his face to the wall. Lilyan Tashman never looks the same to me as she did the last time I saw her. I've always thought I'd like to live a while in Vermont and in the Ozarks. I expect the worst, dentally, eating butter scotch.

A perennial font of information about New York is Roy L. McCardell, the humorist. Brooklyn, to me, is more remote than Boston. And Morningside Heights is the prettiest named section. No magazine or newspaper editor has ever asked me to fit my stuff to his policies.

Roxy is Broadway's most engaging personality. All of a sudden I've developed a pronounced distaste for apples. I regard Dwight Morrow as one of the outstanding Americans of the generation. Columning has never struck me as having the slightest literary significance. I cannot warm up to antics of comediennes.

* * *

Nobody puts enough cheese in macaroni. I once tried to get a job as secretary to Andrew Carnegie. Nothing will move from an argument between taxi-drivers until it ends. The name Isable has a regal sound. I'm fluttery over trifles, astonishingly calm in sudden emergencies, and I like to dry dishes.

* * *

I cannot remember people met at teas, and I quit dancing 10 years ago. A color combination of pink and green produces a faint nausea. I wince picking up an ice-pick, and all Chinese, to me, seem half asleep. The most scholarly man I ever knew was called "Slats" Mulligan, a fireman.

* * *

I like the smell of liquid shoe polish—the kind with a sponge dauber. I've had an idea I'd like to sleep on a fire escape. The most stunning looking newspaper woman I ever knew is Zoe Beckley. I'm thrilled dining on a swiftly moving train. My mother-in-law calls me "Poppy." The only time I ever snored was in the high altitude of Mexico City. Theaters hastened their demise by the insolence of box office attendants and ticket speculation greed. I once shed a moiety of my pajamas trying to hold a burglar in a Cincinnati hotel.

* * *

Sun on water fires me with a yearning for far away places. Lisping children tickle me pink. The first gift I ever gave my wife was a 35-cent red-ribboned box of Lowney's candy. Was I putting it on! My inclination is to pronounce fatigue FAT-i-gue. I can stand for hours at cheap auctions and usually come away with purchases. The best named orchestra leader was Art Hickman. I often wonder why paper cups make water taste so uninteresting. The biggest vote-getting phrase out of the campaign so far is "the forgotten man." As mawkish as it is. Nobody expresses delicate composure like Lillian Gish.

* * *

I am suffocatingly bored looking at kid pictures of others, but I always imagine mine will interest everybody. The service of no other institution has given me so much annoyance as laundries. I have made away with 10 fresh biscuits at a sitting.

* * *

Britain takes the depression with better grace than any other country over there. I'm forever intending to spend an evening playing checkers, but never get around to it. You should see me in knickers. And in a high silk hat I look like a dude chiropractor. My guest book contains the names of 26 men who were millionaires four years ago. But, save two, are like the rest of us boys and girls today. In all my life, I never addressed a strange telephone girl as "Duchess." When my wife wants to make me blush before company, she inquires: "How's my itty mans?"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I wanted harmony. I wanted my life to be in order.

I looked at other people. Some of them were strong and serene. They moved quietly and surely through their days. Life seemed to be in order for them.

I envied them. I wished my life were like that; but it wasn't. My life was nearly always in an uproar. Unpleasant things were always happening to me. People were always doing things to me. I never had a moment's peace. I was always irritated and afraid, never knowing what would happen next.

If I could only have luck like some people, have the breaks for a little while, then everything would be all right, I thought. For I wasn't cowardly or lazy. I was willing to tackle anything, if only people would stop pestering—if only Fate would lay off; and give me a chance.

But people wouldn't and Fate didn't. No matter how hard I battled, my circumstances continued to be just as cussed. I couldn't get along with my family. My friends two-timed me. My business ventures failed. I was distracted by poverty and illness. Try as I would, life remained a mess.

And, of course, I was filled with resentment and self-pity. Why, oh why, should I be the most picked-upon person on earth?

Then, gradually, a strange idea began to dawn upon me. Perhaps I wasn't the most picked-upon person on earth! Perhaps other people, even those serene-looking people, had troubles, too. I didn't really believe it. I didn't want to believe it. But, the question having once entered my mind, I couldn't dislodge it. Suppose it were true?

I looked around; forced myself to see things; forced myself to admit things. Gradually I had to confess that it was true. Other people did have troubles—troubles quite as bad as mine.

Then, what was the answer? Did they have some secret which I didn't possess; or were they simply more callous, less sensitive? No; I had to admit they weren't. They were just as capable of suffering as I was. Then it must be some power in them!

That was it. They did have a power in them which I didn't have. They didn't have a power to command circumstances, any more than I did; BUT THEY COULD COMMAND THEMSELVES! THEY COULD COMMAND THEIR OWN REACTIONS TO CIRCUMSTANCES!

The same irritating things happened to them which happened to everyone else—BUT THEY DID NOT TAKE THEM IN THE SAME WAY. THEY DID NOT LET FEAR AND ANGER AND HATE AND VILENESS GET BENEATH THEIR SKINS.

Of course, they weren't perfect. They had their bad moments, too. But they were on the right track. They had found that they were wasting time and energy when they tried to put the world in order; BUT THEY GOT SOMEWHERE, WHEN THEY PUT THEMSELVES IN ORDER.

They had found that THE WORLD IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT, AND LIFE IS AS YOU TAKE IT—INSIDE YOURSELF.

For you, yourself, are really all the world you have. If you are in order, then disorder can't exist—for you. If you are confident, then fear can't exist—for you. If you don't hate; if you don't grieve; if you don't blow up, then no outer bitterness or bewilderment can possibly get through—to you.

So that was the secret of harmony! It's all in your own eye. And, instead of tidying up the whole universe, you simply need to keep the cinder out of your own eye!

Text For Today And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory.—Isaiah vi:3.

Sen. Wagner's Claim On Public Esteem

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

In no political contest this year is the intelligence and appreciation of the masses of the people put to a test so squarely as in that of Senator Bob Wagner, running for re-election to the Senate from New York. Long before he was drafted to run six years ago New York knew him as a conscientious public servant who had rendered excellent service in the State Senate and on the Supreme and Appellate bench. He helped Smith fight through the great program of social amelioration of which humanitarians everywhere are proud. He was a high type of jurist; and, while always fair and just, no one ever accused him of being partial to the enemies of the public weal. Personally he was clean as a hound's tooth and pleasing in his relations with his fellows.

He was nominated for the Senate six years ago, not because he then was an expert on national problems, but because of his character. That, however, was a high compliment. He was elected, and some of his friends wondered after he "got it" what he "would do with it."

* * *

Neither Flamboyant Nor Humble

Never, we believe, has anyone won the confidence, respect and admiration of his colleagues in the Senate quicker than Wagner. He was not flamboyant; he was not humble; he was merely conscientious and he took his duties seriously. He settled down from November, 1927, until December, 1927, to the most intensive and absorbing study of the outstanding problems of the nation. He did it systematically and thoroughly. He summoned economists, financiers for facts.

It is easy to talk, but more difficult to say something; and almost instantly Wagner got the reputation of a man who does not talk without saying something worth thinking over. He has not been merely a critic; he has submitted more practical, constructive legislation in one term than a good portion of his associates will in four.

* * *

Aware of False Prosperity

At a time when it was thought we were reeking with prosperity because stock not paying dividends was soaring to grotesque heights, and men, buying and selling in the market, were making money, he knew that this "prosperity" did not rest upon the solid rock of reality and sooner or later would tumble like a house of cards. He saw the crash long before it came. And thinking in terms of men, women and children, he thought in terms of employment as well as profit.

It was then he sponsored measures making for the better stabilization of employment and planned for public works to take up the slack when private industry would inevitably lag.

These measures were not written out of his emotions, his sympathy for the masses, but out of his head—and out of the heads of experts whom he consulted. They were progressive and sane measures.

But two administrations dominated by market-minded statesmanship offered a Gibralter-like resistance.

Thus the storm broke and beat upon the house that had not been buttressed to withstand it.

* * *

Won Hoover's Approval

His bill for advanced planning of public works in the event that public construction on a large scale became necessary to furnish jobs to men discharged from private industry was defeated—held back for more than two years by the administration influence.

Meanwhile, the storm broke, and the army of unemployed was lengthening at an appalling rate, and then, and not until then, did the administration withdraw its opposition, and President Hoover, in signing the bill, acknowledged its merits. That was a rare acknowledgement of Wagner's prescience and statesmanship—but tragically belated.

He favored a bond issue for public works on a proper scale to put breadwinners in jobs and increase the trade of merchants and the orders of manufacturers, but the administration would have none of it.

* * *

For Unemployment Insurance

He stands for some safe plan of employment insurance, and foresaw its need long before other men in public life. Even now this is pronounced "radical" and impossible by people still thinking in terms of another generation.

And it is just here that we can see the value of Wagner in public life. He is one of the few who are not clinging to the old formula of a dead day, the old traditions society has swept by. He is one of the few in public life who seem to realize that something has happened which threatens our institutions if not our social system, and to know that unless something is done better to safeguard the human rights of the great mass of people we are going to be broken on the rocks.

He knows that no system can justify or preserve itself which permits millions of breadwinners to be thrown into the street and denied their right to work. Anyone who does not know that much does not know enough to govern.

He knows that starvation in a land of plenty calls for some serious governmental readjustments. He knows these readjustments are not destructive but preservative of our institutions.

* * *

Puts Sympathy Into Action

There are many men in public life who can, and do, sympathize with the plight of the masses. They wax eloquent on it, but eloquence is not a pay check or a loaf of bread. Wagner differs from most of these in that he translates his sympathy into action.

He denounces no one—the only thing the demagogue can do.

He seeks to tear no class or element down—he wishes merely to build.

No man in public life leans more on the ripe experience of men of large affairs and on the economists.

There is not an economist of consequence between the seas who has not interested himself in Wagner's reform measures and formed an admiration for his spirit and purpose.

* * *

Nation Needs Economists

We have reached a crisis in our affairs in which we need and must have in national public life more men with the social sense, the human sympathy, the constructive instinct of Bob Wagner. Our problems are more important than parties and are too deep for old-fashioned politics.

We require the statesmanship of the economist—for the preservation of our institutions and our whole scheme of things lies in the application of sound economics and a social sense that has heart beat.

And Wagner is the real progressive; he is the sound conservative.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

How about it old man, aren't you rather selfish about how you spend your evenings?

You are amiable enough when you can do just as you desire, but if your own proposed routine is in any way interfered with you become peeved.

Your wife may want to spend the early part of the evening in a way that would not tax your strength or prevent you from getting your usual hours of sleep.

But you don't care for her kind of enjoyment and you say so although she often accompanies you places she does not care to go, mostly without comment.

You expect her to be willing to do as you suggest, but you have no idea of falling in graciously with any of her plans, should she express hers.

What is the matter with your line of reasoning that you should expect to lead in all plans for leisure and recreation?

You think you make a good excuse when you say you are tired.

But your wife is unpleasantly aware of the fact that you never are too tired to do what you want to do.

Naturally she resents the fact that you are only too tired when her plans come up for fulfillment.
